Wintry Storm Slams Eastern States

Heavy Snow, Sleet Snarl Auto Traffic

Major Cities Hit; At Least 34 Deaths Blamed On Weather

By United Press International
A giant snow, sleet and rain storm, seemingly gathering strength after a marathon journey out of the Southwest, raced across the Midwest Sunday to unleash its fury on the East.
Heavy snow warnings were issued as far north as Boston as the storm rolled into the Atlantic coast states, preceded by sleet and freezing rain which glazed highways and streets with a treacherous sheet of ice.
Rashes of fender-bending auto accidents cropped out throughout the East as the snow snarled traffic in the major cities. In New York City, motorists crept along at a snail's pace on streets reported as slick as glass, while in Washington stalled autos choked many thoroughfares.
At least 34 deaths were blamed on the weather. Seven of the deaths occurred in New England in fires attributed to the return of a siege of cold weather temperatures to the area.

Castro Firing Squads Execute Six "Traitors"

HAVANA (AP) — Prosecutors set the stage Sunday for the execution of at least seven more enemies of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government, moving swiftly after six new victims of Cuban firing squads were buried in Santa Clara.
Six men were executed Saturday night at lonely La Campana ranch, 20 miles south of Santa Clara and within gunshot sound of the Escambray Mountains, where the latest government drive is developing against anti-Castro insurgents.
This, raised to 582 the unofficial total of executions since Castro gained power nearly two years ago. Most took place in the early days of his regime when "war criminals" of the deposed Fulgencio Batista dictatorship were speedily convicted and sentenced.
Military prosecutors in westernmost Pinar del Rio Province sought a quick death penalty for a defecting army captain and six of his followers captured after a gun battle less than 30 miles from Havana.
Facing the death sentence were former Capt. Clodomiro Miranda and six of 10 insurgents captured with him. Miranda's brother and an army lieutenant died in the battle which led to the captures last week. The military prosecutor accused Miranda and his followers, several of them members of Miranda's family, of serving "Yankee imperialism."
Two of those executed near Santa Clara were convicted of insurgent activities. The other four were shot for attempting to seize a Cuban commercial airliner in flight over central Cuba Thursday night.

Casket Of Brazil Unknown Soldier Saved In Crash

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A plane carrying Brazil's Unknown Soldier of World War II home from Italy exploded and burned on landing here Sunday but the casket was saved. All 10 persons aboard survived.
The plane was one of three carrying home the remains of 462 Brazilian soldiers who fell in Italy in World War II. They were stopping here for a memorial ceremony Monday before proceeding on to Brazil.

Anti-Filibuster Action Opposed By Mansfield

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana called on Democratic liberals Sunday to sidetrack attacks on the Senate filibuster rule. He said such attacks might stymie the Kennedy legislative program.
Mansfield, expected to become Senate Democratic leader, said efforts to make it easier to cut off extended talk against civil rights measures could disrupt party unity needed to put over the new president's program.
"We ought to face up to the realities of the situation and recognize that the Democratic President will have a program he will want to put through," Mansfield said.
"We will need as united a party as it is possible to get to do this. If we get into difficulties over the filibuster rule there could well be no changes in it, plus the possibility that at least a part of the new president's program will be stymied."

Hymn-Singing Negroes March

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Several thousand hymn-singing Negroes marched through downtown Atlanta Sunday and held a prayer meeting at Plaza Park, near the city's famed Five Points.
The march, staged to support the campaign against lunch counter segregation in downtown stores, followed an earlier hymn-singing and prayer session at Herndon Stadium.
Attendance at the Herndon Stadium meeting was estimated at from 5,000 to 6,000.
Despite a cold wind and light rain, most of the Negroes at the stadium marched more than a mile to the downtown area.
Singing, "Deep in my heart, I do believe, we will overcome someday," the marchers wound through the downtown section to the park.
The Negroes had wanted to hold their meeting at Five Points but were denied permission by Mayor William B. Hartsfield. Five Points is the heart of downtown Atlanta.

Scientists Report Discovery Of New Galaxies Billions Of Light Years Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Important new telescopic discoveries in the far, far reaches of space were reported Sunday by the Carnegie Institution of Washington.
They deal with things trillions of miles beyond the highest heights yet achieved by man's most sophisticated satellites.
The findings, hailed by Carnegie scientists as offering reason for re-examination of current theories as to the origin, age and structure of the universe — include the revelation of:
1. A whole cluster of new and possibly colliding galaxies — giant aggregates of stars, each at least as extensive as our own Milky Way galaxy. They apparently are receding from the earth at the unprecedented speed of about 90,000 miles a second, or almost half the speed of light. The most distant astronomical objects yet discovered, the galaxies are estimated to be at least several billion light years away (a light year is six million, million miles) — so far that the light recorded by Carnegie and associated scientists left the cluster several billion years ago.
2. New evidence suggesting that a previously known distant galaxy — known as NGC 188 — may be 25 billion years old, the oldest age thus found for any group of stars, and some current views on the age of stars — and therefore for the universe as a whole — place the limit at only 7½ billion years.
3. "The strongest magnetic field so far found in nature." Recorded during a violent flare on a distant star called HD 213441, it was rated to have an intensity of 34,400 gauss, the gauss being a unit of magnetic strength. By comparison, the largest sun spots have magnetic fields rated at about 4,000 gauss.
4. New and confirming evidence that some of the stars in the universe are deviant oddballs, with chemical compositions showing large variations from those normally observed in the sun and other stars in its neighborhood.
The Carnegie report said this deviant composition find raises questions basic to the structure and dynamics of the universe, and presents a new puzzle as to how the stars generate and utilize thermonuclear energy.
The discoveries were made with the giant 200-inch telescope at Mt. Palomar, California, by scientists of the Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories. These are operated jointly by Carnegie and the California Institute of Technology.

Quinim Takes Over Laotian Government

Pro-West Forces Encircle Capital; Red Arms Flown In

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Quinim Pholsena, former minister of information, took over the Laotian government Sunday and moved it closer to the Communists than at any time since the country became independent six years ago.
The Soviet Union promptly resumed its airlift and reportedly ferried arms and ammunition to this capital, which is encircled by pro-Western forces. Prompt support from neighboring Communist China and North Viet Nam also is expected.
The pro-Communist Pathet Lao guerrillas, who have been harassing successive Laotian governments since 1954 despite hundreds of millions in U. S. military aid to Vientiane aimed at wiping them out, are expected to rally to Quinim's side.
Paratroop Capt. Kong Le, who touched off the current round of civil war by deposing the pro-Western government in a coup Aug. 9, also is obviously in Quinim's camp.
During the three months Prince Souvanna Phouma had headed the now - deposed neutralist government and tried to work out a truce, Kong Le had been crying for battle with rightist and pro-Western forces under Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.
The three other members of Quinim's Cabinet are either outright leftists or inclined that way. The group brought Laos its third change of government in four days, and its assumption of power swept away the neutralist middle ground in Laotian politics.
On the military front, Quinim's takeover also stiffened battle lines between the outnumbered leftist troops defending Vientiane and forces led by Phoumi, whose troops outside the city are awaiting artillery reinforcements.

7th Survivor Of Crashed Jet Bomber Found

BARRE, Vt. (UPI) — Battling bitter winter weather, members of a 1,000-man ground search party late Sunday found the seventh member of a crew of eight which bailed out of a disabled B32 jet bomber before it crashed Friday night in the Green Mountains of Vermont.
As darkness closed in, 1st Lt. George M. Davis, 27, of Pawtucket, R.I., was found at Trout Lake, near Bolton Landing, N.Y., about nine miles east of Lake George and some 18 air miles southeast of Schroon Lake, N.Y., where the other survivors were found previously. Davis, an electronics warfare officer, was reported in good condition but was taken to Plattsburgh Air Force Base Hospital for a thorough examination.
Hope was expressed for the safety of the one airman still missing, S.Sgt. Pierre Maheux, 27, of Auburn, Maine.
Search headquarters at West-over Air Force Base in Massachusetts said the crew members could apply their survival training to withstand temperatures which plunged to 14 degrees below zero in Vermont Saturday night. The temperature still was below zero when Davis was found about 5 p.m. EST but the forecast predicted rising temperatures and snow.
Col. Delmore Wood, who was directing the search, said more than 1,000 airmen, police and civilian volunteers were taking part in the hunt and had been concentrated along the path of the disabled plane. The big aircraft crashed and exploded in a small fragments near Barre after its eight-man crew had bailed out.
The other six crewmen who were located by searchers or who found their way to safety Saturday, all landed in the Schroon Lake, N.Y., area.

Red Arms Promised

Military aid from the Communists to Quinim could be airlifted via North Viet Nam, which Quinim visited just before taking power Sunday. He returned promising that troops defending this city would be strengthened with arms from the Communists. During Souvanna's rule, Moscow established diplomatic relations with Laos and promised aid. Soviet planes then began delivering drums of gasoline. The airlift had been cut off during the past few days of chaotic political maneuverings.
Quinim's seizure of power was accompanied by no legal formalities, and Westerners do not expect his government to last much longer than the six-man military junta preceding it.

Kennedy Meets Cabinet Delays

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy mixed relaxation in balmy weather Sunday with another round of telephone conferences on filling seven Cabinet positions and other top jobs in the new administration.
Kennedy worked at the family's Atlantic shore home after going to 10 a.m. Mass at his parish church, St. Edward's. His wife Jacqueline, still recuperating after the birth of their son 17 days ago, did not accompany Kennedy to the services.
It was a glorious day for taking it easy in the warm sun on the lawn beside the ocean at the Kennedy estate. And Kennedy did just that once his talks on the phone were concluded.
Later he rounded up an old friend, New York investment banker Charles Spaulding, for a golf match at the Palm Beach Country Club course.
Kennedy, who arrived from Washington Friday evening and plans to fly back to the capital Monday afternoon, had hoped to have his Cabinet completed by now.
But so far only three of the 10 positions have been filled.

French African Bloc May Balk At Algeria Plan

Would Revise Referendum Proposal

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — A spokesman for French African delegations said Sunday they might vote to kill an Asian-African proposal for a U.N. referendum in Algeria.
Arab diplomats backing the Algerian rebels expressed doubt this would happen. But other informed sources said they thought there was a fairly good chance it would.
To end the six-year-old rebellion in Algeria, President Charles de Gaulle intends that France shall conduct a referendum there offering Algerians a choice among independence, a link with France or integration with her.
Twenty-three African and Asian countries are sponsoring a resolution that would have the U.N. General Assembly decide that a self-determination referendum "shall be conducted in Algeria, organized, controlled and supervised by the United Nations."
The French African spokesman, who could not be named, said his group of 12 countries wanted this changed to say that whatever the United Nations might have to do with the referendum should be determined by negotiations between the two parties concerned — meaning France and the rebel Algerian provisional government.
Unless this change is made, he said, it may be that all those countries will vote against the referendum proposal. He said they decided at a private meeting Saturday to vote together on the issue, but had not decided yet what their vote would be.
The first vote will come probably Friday in the assembly's Political Committee, where the resolution is pending. Even enemies of the resolution concede it will almost certainly get the simple majority needed for adoption there.
But the proposal then will need a two-thirds vote for final approval in the assembly, where the same 99 countries sit as in the committee. The forces for and against it appear so nearly even that many observers believe the French African group could stop it by voting against it.
Arab diplomats said privately they did not think the French African countries would dare vote against the resolution because that would provoke a strong adverse reaction both among their own people and in the Asian-African group.
France is boycotting the debate.

French Army Troops Fire On Moslems

Over 300 Wounded In Demonstrations Against De Gaulle

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — French paratroopers fired on thousands of Moslem rioters Sunday and put down a wild outburst of violence that left at least 63 dead and more than 300 wounded. Officials counted 38 bodies in the morgue of Mustapha Hospital alone. They said about a score of others died in other hospitals and clinics.
Fifteen of the dead were Moslems killed by French troops in the government plaza. Three Europeans were dead, but most of the others also were Moslems, slain in a series of isolated but steady clashes on this third day of demonstrations which began with the arrival of President Charles de Gaulle on a mission to win support for his program of self-government for this French territory.
Curfew Brings Uneasy Quiet
At 8 p.m. an uneasy, almost bitter, quiet gripped the city as the French army's strict curfew took effect. Strong patrols of heavily armed troops roamed the city's silent, deserted streets. Gen. Jean Crepin, commander in chief in Algeria, issued a stern warning that his troops will maintain public order without exceptions.
Crepin placed equal blame on a minority of Moslem rebel leaders, and "a handful of European agitators" for the outbreak of violence.
In their efforts to restore order to the strife-torn city, authorities blocked the publication of the three Algiers morning newspapers. With open defiance, the Moslems took to the streets to shout their support for the nationalist rebellion that has raged here for six years.
The Moslem outbreak far surpassed in violence and bloodshed the two preceding days, when the Europeans of the divided capital fought riot police in bloody demonstrations.
"This is a general uprising," cried a spokesman for the right-wing front for French Algeria. Moslems On Rampage Right-wing Europeans openly voiced grim threats against De Gaulle, now in Bougie on his inspection tour.
It was De Gaulle's policy of self-determination for Algeria which enraged the Europeans to riot and, at the same time, gave the Moslems confidence to flaunt their support for rebellion.

Stock Car Racer Strikes, Kills 13

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A driver in his "Lucky Seven" stock car racer smashed into two crowds of spectators who spilled over onto the roadway of the Argentine Grand Prix endurance road race here Sunday, killing at least 13 persons. A number of other persons was injured.
Two persons were killed in two other isolated accidents Sunday in the tragedy-marred 38th annual race.
Driver Juan Carlos Navone was heading toward the finish line and sped into suburban San Justo to find the road cluttered with spectators. He sideswiped one group but his stock car, dubbed "Lucky Seven," slammed head-on into another crowd.
The car sped on, and Navone collapsed at the finish line and was treated for shock.
The race was won by Oscar Galvez. The course ran from Buenos Aires to the Andes in the west and looped back across northern Argentina to the finish at the Municipal Autodrome.

Storm Delays Ike's Return To Capital

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Snow and stormy weather in Washington Sunday delayed President Eisenhower's departure for Washington until Monday morning.
White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower accepted the recommendation of his pilot, Col. William G. Draper, against returning to the capital Sunday.
Draper phoned the President after checking weather conditions in Washington.
Eisenhower, who has been vacationing at the Augusta National Golf Club since Friday, had planned to leave for the capital in midafternoon.

Space Capsule Rushed To Mainland For Study

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — A gold-plated Discoverer capsule, the third one fished from western Pacific skies by the Air Force, arrived on the United States mainland Sunday for an intensive study of the bits of human tissue it contained.
The capsule arrived at 12 noon (EST) at nearby Moffett Field Naval air station aboard an Air Force Constellation and was brought immediately to the Lockheed missile plant here. The plane left Honolulu Saturday night.
An Air Force spokesman said the 300-pound capsule was snatched by a plane flown by substitute pilot Capt. Gene Jones, Walla Walla, Wash.
It will remain here about a week before being sent to other space laboratories in the nation.
It was the Air Force's second consecutive "catch" of a Discoverer satellite — both made by Jones. Air Force planes made one previous aerial recovery, and also scooped a capsule out of the ocean.
The capsule, containing human eyelid tissue, bone marrow and blood, had made a record 48 passes around the earth at 18,000 miles an hour — a total of 1,248,000 miles.
Scientists want to check the amount of radiation the tissue absorbed to determine the dangers to future space travelers.
In Honolulu, where Jones' C119 recovery plane is based, an Air Force officer assigned to the program said "we're damned happy...two in a row recovered, 48 orbits. We ought to learn a lot from one."

Wintry Storm Slams Eastern States

Heavy Snow, Sleet Snarl Auto Traffic

Major Cities Hit; At Least 34 Deaths Blamed On Weather

By United Press International
A giant snow, sleet and rain storm, seemingly gathering strength after a marathon journey out of the Southwest, raced across the Midwest Sunday to unleash its fury on the East.
Heavy snow warnings were issued as far north as Boston as the storm rolled into the Atlantic coast states, preceded by sleet and freezing rain which glazed highways and streets with a treacherous sheet of ice.
Rashes of fender-bending auto accidents cropped out throughout the East as the snow snarled traffic in the major cities. In New York City, motorists crept along at a snail's pace on streets reported as slick as glass, while in Washington stalled autos choked many thoroughfares.
At least 34 deaths were blamed on the weather. Seven of the deaths occurred in New England in fires attributed to the return of a siege of cold weather temperatures to the area.

D. C. Expects Up To 10 Inches
The storm dumped up to five inches in its swing through the Midwest. But with the full strength of the storm beginning to slam into the East, weathermen revised snow forecasts, upping snowfall in the Washington area by four inches, with accumulations of up to 10 inches expected overall.

Three to five inches of snow blanketed the central section of Indiana, with the capital of Indianapolis — Indianapolis — already under two or three inches of snow. Freezing rain iced roads in the southern section of Indiana and, although all roads were opening, driving was a nightmarish affair.
The biggest snowfall of the season dropped on Columbus and Southern Ohio.

The Midwest invasion of the storm followed heavy snow warnings, which were posted over the central states snow belt after the storm had powered through Arkansas, Kansas and Missouri, generally dumping three to six inches of snow.

Pa. Turnpike Hazardous
In the East, all roads in western Pennsylvania were covered with snow and ice-slicked. Driving was hazardous. Officials of the Pennsylvania Turnpike urged motorists to stay off the famed superhighway unless travel was absolutely necessary. House trailers and utility trailers were banned from the high-speed route.

First snows on the turnpike ranged in depth up to four to six inches, falling from the Ohio border eastward about 200 miles, and forecasts called for even more snow.
The U.S. Weather Bureau said the snow, freezing rain and sleet hitting the East covered a band 100 to 200 miles wide in its original form.
At Washington, D.C., early snow depths ranged from 1.5 inches in southern suburbs and to 4.5 inches in northwest suburbs. About 2.5 inches was reported at Washington National Airport.

Kennedy 135,728 Ahead Of Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — With only four states still to report official figures, President-elect John F. Kennedy Sunday held a plurality of 135,728 votes over Vice President Richard M. Nixon.
The breakdown:
Kennedy—34,221,397.
Nixon—34,086,269.
Counting 471,809 votes cast for minor candidates: had pledged electors, the total popular vote stood at 68,780,975.
Still to report their official vote results from the Nov. 8 election are Illinois, Massachusetts, New York and Rhode Island.

Liberal Democrats, led by Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, tentatively have scheduled a Dec. 27 meeting to decide what course to pursue to get the rule changed at the opening of the 87th Congress.
They contend the present requirement of approval by two-thirds of all senators voting to cut off lengthy debate makes it impossible to pass any except what they regard as watered-down civil rights measures.
Southern Democrats who strenuously oppose party platform pledges for the passage of teeth-bearing proposals in this field can be expected to filibuster any rules change proposal.

Col. Delmore Wood, who was directing the search, said more than 1,000 airmen, police and civilian volunteers were taking part in the hunt and had been concentrated along the path of the disabled plane. The big aircraft crashed and exploded in small fragments near Barre after its eight-man crew had bailed out.
The other six crewmen who were located by searchers or who found their way to safety Saturday, all landed in the Schroon Lake, N.Y., area.

Stock Car Racer Strikes, Kills 13

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A driver in his "Lucky Seven" stock car racer smashed into two crowds of spectators who spilled over onto the roadway of the Argentine Grand Prix endurance road race here Sunday, killing at least 13 persons. A number of other persons were injured.
Two persons were killed in two other isolated accidents Sunday in the tragedy-marred 38th annual race.
Driver Juan Carlos Navone was heading toward the finish line and sped into suburban San Justo to find the road cluttered with spectators. He sideswiped one group but his stock car, dubbed "Lucky Seven," slammed head-on into another crowd.
The car sped on, and Navone collapsed at the finish line and was treated for shock.
The race was won by Oscar Galvez. The course ran from Buenos Aires to the Andes in the west and looped back across northern Argentina to the finish at the Municipal Autodrome.

Storm Delays Ike's Return To Capital

AUGUSTA, GA. (AP) — Snow and stormy weather in Washington Sunday delayed President Eisenhower's departure for Washington until Monday morning.
White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower accepted the recommendation of his pilot, Col. William G. Draper, against returning to the capital Sunday.
Draper phoned the President after checking weather conditions in Washington.
Eisenhower, who has been vacationing at the Augusta National Golf Club since Friday, had planned to leave for the capital in midafternoon.

School Boycott In Fourth Week

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The fourth week of integration in public school classrooms begins here Monday, with some parents and legislators still opposed to Negroes attending the previously all-white schools.
The weekend saw stepped up activity by groups seeking to break a virtual boycott of white students at the two elementary schools — William Frantz and McDonogh No. 19.
Federal and local officials reportedly discussed ways of getting more students back into Frantz. Federal marshals escorted the eight white children who went to school Friday along with a lone Negro girl.
There seemed little chance that white children would go back with three Negroes to McDonogh, which has been boycotted completely for the last two weeks. Groups of mothers who withdrew their children in protest over desegregation worked quietly persuading others to aid them in keeping the school "for Negroes only."

Space Capsule Rushed To Mainland For Study

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — A gold-plated Discoverer capsule, the third one fished from western Pacific skies by the Air Force, arrived on the United States mainland Sunday for an intensive study of the bits of human tissue it contained.
The capsule arrived at 12 noon (EST) at nearby Moffett Field Naval air station aboard an Air Force Constellation and was brought immediately to the Lockheed missile plant here. The plane left Honolulu Saturday night.
An Air Force spokesman said the 300 - pound capsule was snatched by a plane flown by substitute pilot Capt. Gene Jones, Walla Walla, Wash.
It will remain here about a week before being sent to other space laboratories in the nation.
It was the Air Force's second consecutive "catch" of a Discoverer satellite — both made by Jones. Air Force planes made one previous aerial recovery, and also scooped a capsule out of the ocean.
The capsule, containing human blood tissue, bone marrow and eyelid, had made a record 48 passes around the earth at 18,000 miles an hour — a total of 1,248,000 miles.
Scientists want to check the amount of radiation the tissue absorbed to determine the dangers to future space travelers.
In Honolulu, where Jones' C119 recovery plane is based, an Air Force officer assigned to the program said "we're damned happy... two in a row recovered, 48 orbits. We ought to learn a lot from one."

French Army Troops Fire On Moslems

Over 300 Wounded In Demonstrations Against De Gaulle

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — French paratroopers fired on thousands of Moslem rioters Sunday and put down a wild outburst of violence that left at least 65 dead and more than 300 wounded. Officials counted 38 bodies in the morgue of Mustapha Hospital alone. They said about a score of others died in other hospitals and clinics.

Fifteen of the dead were Moslems felled by French troops in the government plaza. Three Europeans were dead, but most of the others also were Moslems, slain in a series of isolated but steady clashes on this third day of demonstrations which began with the arrival of President Charles de Gaulle on a mission to win support for his program of self-government for this French territory.

Curfew Brings Uneasy Quiet
At 8 p.m. an uneasy, almost bitter, quiet gripped the city as the French army's strict curfew took effect. Strong patrols of heavily armed troops roamed the city's silent, deserted streets. Gen. Jean Crepin, commander in chief in Algeria, issued a stern warning that his troops will maintain public order without exceptions.
Crepin placed equal blame on a minority of Moslem rebel leaders, and "a handful of European agitators" for the outbreak of violence.
In their efforts to restore order to the strife-torn city, authorities blocked the publication of the three Algiers morning newspapers. With open defiance, the Moslems took to the streets to shout their support for the nationalist rebellion that has raged here for six years.

The Moslem outbreak far surpassed in violence and bloodshed the two preceding days, when the Europeans of the divided capital fought riot police in bloody demonstrations.
"This is a general uprising," cried a spokesman for the right-wing front for French Algeria.

Moslems On Rampage
Right-wing Europeans openly voiced grim threats against De Gaulle, now in Bougie on his inspection tour.
It was De Gaulle's policy of self-determination for Algeria which enraged the Europeans to riot and, at the same time, gave the Moslems confidence to flaunt their support for rebellion.

Formal Bid For British Ford Co. Expected Today

$360 Million Offered For Complex

LONDON (AP)—Five hundred acres along the Thames River—once the somber Essex marshes of Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations"—are about to become American property.

Where smugglers and highway-men used to hold clandestine meetings in the wilderness now stand the furnaces and factory buildings of a sprawling industrial plant, the Ford Motor Co. Ltd., of Dagenham, England.

The Dagenham complex is the kingpin of the vast automaking empire which the American Ford company wants to call all its own.

Monday, they plan to make their formal bid.

Their $360 million offer for 17.7 million British Ford shares not already owned in Detroit stirred heated parliamentary protests from British Socialists and grew before final approval for the takeover was granted.

It was the largest bid ever made for the shares of a British company.

For this one giant dollar payment Henry Ford II will get 11 secondary Ford plants in England besides the main Dagenham plant. These include assembly lines for six different passenger cars, a line of trucks, farm equipment and accessories sold the world over.

British Ford made 320,000 cars, 85,000 commercial vehicles and 67,000 tractors last year, averaging about one-fourth of all British output. It is the second largest motor manufacturer in Britain.

With all-American ownership, Ford has his own great expectations for future development of the Dagenham marshes. A $200-million expansion program is already under way, at a time when most of the British motor industry is cutting back production.

Private Capital Outflow Of U.S. Business Soars

WASHINGTON (AP)—American business firms now employ more than three million workers and produce $35 billion worth of commodities each year in enterprises abroad, the Commerce Department reported Sunday.

The massive growth of private capital investment was pictured in a comprehensive study—based on the 1957 census of overseas investment, brought up to date by some new estimates.

The report indicated that direct investment by Americans in overseas branches, subsidiaries and affiliates has been at a rate of more than $2 billion annually in recent years. One official estimated, privately that 1960 investment was about $1.5 billion.

The continuing heavy flow of private capital combined with much larger government payments for foreign military and economic aid, has contributed to the country's large deficit in international payments.

It also has aroused some criticism in Congress. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and others have complained that the capital outflow amounts to "the export of American jobs."

The Commerce study showed that fewer than one in 100 of the workers in the foreign affiliates were sent from the United States. In most foreign countries, U.S. firms have encouraged local participation in management and financing.

However, it continues to be the government's policy to encourage private investment overseas, especially in underdeveloped lands.

Aid To Underdeveloped Nations Upped By Reds

U. S. Less Concerned Than In Past

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communist bloc stepped up its aid to underdeveloped nations in 1960 to more than a billion dollars. But U.S. officials are less concerned by these Red efforts than they were two years ago.

State Department figures show the Communist bloc extended $1.35 billion to 20 nations during the first 10 months of this year. For all of 1958—when U.S. diplomats expressed alarm at the Red aid drive—the total was $978 million. This dropped to $922 million in 1959.

Over all, the figures indicate the Soviet-Red Chinese group has doled out almost $4.6 billion between 1954 and Oct. 31 this year. Since 1958, only three nations have been added to the list—left-leaning Cuba, Ghana and Guinea.

Officials keeping an eye on Soviet bloc efforts do not try to minimize their importance, but they concede that some dark predictions made two years ago proved to be exaggerated.

There were somber hints in 1958 that Soviet technicians were being sent to recipient countries as camouflaged agents whose main aim was to spread the Communist gospel.

Today officials said the State Department is satisfied this is not true.

They described the Soviet experts—and there are hundreds of them in every country receiving bloc aid—as mostly technicians.

U.S. diplomats here now believe that, rather than using its aid program for infiltration the Communist bloc is trying to create an atmosphere of friendliness, to demonstrate the high level of its industry.

Eighteen nations which received $3.22 billion in Communist bloc aid from 1955 through 1959 got $5.72 billion from the United States in the same period. But the United States began giving aid to these countries in 1948 and since then the total has reached $10.02 billion.

Snow Reduces Traffic, Keeps Md. Toll Down

By The Associated Press

State Police reported traffic reduced to a trickle Sunday as a heavy snowfall kept motorists off slick Maryland highways.

A fatal accident early Sunday, before the snow started to fall, increased the weekend traffic toll to three. Four other persons died in fires.

Sunday's highway victim was Guy D. Henson, 47, a Negro, of Brandywine. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Physicians Hospital in La Plata, after being struck by a car on Horsehead Road in Malcolm, Charles County.

State Police said the driver of the car, Robert W. Washington, 22, a Negro, also of Brandywine, reported he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming car.

The other highway deaths included: Ralph Harvey Clark, 28, Chevy Chase, killed Saturday when the car he was driving collided with three others and overturned on U. S. 40, five miles west of Hagerstown.

Carl Luther Headon, 21, of Washington, fatally injured Friday when struck by a car as he walked across Old Washington Road, two miles north of Maryland 5 near Waldorf, Charles County.

Three of the fire victims were members of a Baltimore Negro family. They perished in their rowhouse Friday night after an oil stove exploded.

The victims were Mrs. Virginia Sterrett, 33, and her daughters, Elsa Diane, 4, and Laura, 3. The mother was seven months pregnant and doctors tried in vain to save the life of the unborn child.

The other fire victim was Mrs. Florence Dix, about 80, who died Friday night in a fire at her home in Pocomoke City, Worcester County.

Chrysler Corp. Denies British Deal Report

LONDON (AP)—The Chrysler Corp. denied Sunday a British press report it is seeking a big piece of Britain's Standard-Triumph auto combine.

In a story splashed across its front page, Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express said such a financial deal was under way and would arouse "tremendous opposition" in Britain.

The Express story said Chrysler had come up with a share offer right in the middle of negotiations for a 100-million-pound ($280-million) merger of Standard-Triumph and the Leyland truck manufacturing concern.

Chrysler, said the Express, probably was aiming at gaining eventual control over Standard-Triumph. The paper argued such a deal would be bitterly opposed in this country, coming so soon after American Fords move for takeover of all shares in its British subsidiary.

The question was submitted by attorney Hyman A. Pressman as a pre-trial maneuver in his suit to block the compact.

Pressman represents Southern Maryland watermen who oppose the pact, a document approved by both legislatures in 1958 to set up bi-state regulation of the Maryland-owned river.

The watermen forced a public vote on the document in the Nov. 8 election. It received a 40,000-vote margin for ratification, but Pressman claims it was not properly advertised before the election.

The governor proclaimed ratification of the compact last Monday on the basis of official election canvass.

Pressman's 3½ pages of questions for Tawes include these:

"Why did you not wait until after the courts ruled on the validity of the vote on the referendum on the Potomac River Compact before you proclaimed the ratification of said compact?"

"Did you issue your proclamation of the ratification . . . for the purpose of influencing the decision of the court?"

Pressman's list of questions

UMWA Urges Action To Save Coal Industry

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Drastic action must be taken if complete chaos is to be averted in the coal industry, the United Mine Workers of America said Sunday.

In a special report, the UMWA said that "only a transfusion of outside aid and/or a revitalization of the coal industry can prevent complete economic collapse."

The report — outlining the troubles in the anthracite and bituminous industries and suggesting potential remedies — was prepared for presentation to a House Committee on Education and Labor. It was released by Thomas Kennedy, of Hazelton, Pa., international president of the UMWA.

"Most major coal producing states in our nation are centers of chronic joblessness," Kennedy said. "Over 100,000 coal miners, both anthracite and bituminous, are idle due to no fault of their own."

He said the only alternative to corrective action in the field of unemployment is gradual decay of the nation's economic framework.

As solutions for these depressed areas, the union said it believes local communities must do a great deal to help themselves.

Among the main UMWA proposals were to "give coal an equal competitive opportunity now sadly lacking," to "stop wasteful and discriminatory use of a rival fuel," and to "stop the enrichment of foreign nations at the expense of American industry."

Sweden had a turnout of 85.6 per cent of eligible voters for the country's recent elections to its lower house.

Plane Lands On Highway During Storm

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP)—A light plane with the pilot and two passengers was forced to make an emergency landing Sunday on U.S. 240 near Germantown during the season's first heavy snowfall as ice formed on the wings.

Maryland State Police said the plane was piloted by Roger H. Jones of Chevy Chase.

Police said Jones brought the Cessna Skylark 175 down on the grass dividing strip between the two traffic lanes, nosing over enough to bend the propeller. None of the three sustained any injuries, police said.

The others in the plane were Edward C. Jones, a brother of Roger, and Anna Filbrook. Police said the plane is owned by the Hinson Aviation Co.

The three took off from the Montgomery County Airport at Laytonsville for a sightseeing trip but were forced to land when the wings began to ice up, police said.

Hagerstown Schoolboy Stars In USIA Movie

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—Resident of some 45 countries are going to get a look at American life through the eyes of a 10th-grade Maryland schoolboy.

The glimpse of Americana is being prepared by the U.S. Information Agency, which is filming a movie of the life and times of John Schnell of Hagerstown.

Hagerstown was picked as representative of small American cities. The search for a star actor was narrowed to John after interviews with his classmates.

David Gaines, senior TV producer for the USIA, said the purpose of the production is to give foreign audiences "an impression of the positive qualities of American young people."

Shooting for the movie, to be billed as "The Education of John Schnell," began last week. What are some of the views foreign audiences will be shown?

This week the camera will focus on classes at South Hagerstown High School, where the hero attends classes, plays in the band, and participates in such things as the Parliamentary Procedure Club and the Photograph Club.

Then the camera crews will move to John's home and follow the boy as he makes his rounds as a newspaper deliverer. The film will look in on the local telephone office where John's father,

THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST

Everything you want and then some

Many residents of the Pacific Northwest* make it a point never to leave the area. Everything a family could want to do or to see are within a few hours' drive of home.

Do you want to take your vacation in the mountains or at the seashore? In the Pacific Northwest you can do both. Some of the most spectacular mountains of this continent and the most inviting beaches are within a few hours' drive of each other.

Do you enjoy green forests or warm, sunny desert? Both are in the Pacific Northwest.

You can hunt with a scatter gun for birds and with a rifle for game, both in the same day. You can go boating on salt or fresh water in the morning and then ski in the afternoon. You can fish in salt water, magnificent rivers, or beautiful lakes.

The climate is moderate. The scenery is magnificent. The things to do are exciting. There is no better place to live — or to visit — than the Pacific Northwest. There is everything that you could want and then some.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl almost 12 years old and I think I have a problem.
Last night during dinner my father asked my sister to get up and bring him a glass of milk. All I said was, "Are you too lazy to get the milk yourself, Dad?" He blew right up and yelled that I had opened my big mouth once too often and I wasn't getting any allowance next week. He also said I couldn't go to a show Saturday.
I said, "Why don't you make me a real hermit and cut my phone privileges, too?" He answered, "Thanks for the suggestion" and he did.
I always thought in a democracy people could say whatever they wanted. How about this? — SLAVE LABOR
DEAR SLAVE: Freedom of speech does not extend to sassing parents. Kids who speak disrespectfully to Mom and Dad should be hauled back in line promptly. Your father was perfectly right to clobber you on the spot.
DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week I received a letter from my 33-year-old son. He's in the Army stationed up north.
His letter was pages long and mostly about a fine girl he had met. He's in love and wants to get married right away. Toward the end of the letter I thought I was seeing things. He wrote: "She is pregnant and the baby isn't mine. I want to marry her and be a father to her child."
Three questions are running through my mind. Please help me decide. (1) Does this girl really love my son or is she just looking for a legal father for her baby? (2) Will I be able to love this child as I love my other grandchildren knowing there's none of our family blood in his veins? (3) What will our friends think? — ABX
DEAR ABX: If your son marries this girl — and he probably will — you must believe that (1) She loves him and is not just looking for a legal father for her child. (2) Resolve to love the baby as you do your other grandchildren. He is not to blame for the circumstances of his birth. (3) The opinions of your friends should be of no importance. Keep them out of this.
DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every so often someone writes in to complain that an aging father is getting married for a second time. Usually the grown kids don't like it.
I'm an unmarried member of a large family, and in my 65 years of "relative-watching" I've seen plenty. If Pa has no dough the kids are happy to see him marry some nice woman who will take care of him and keep him out of their hair in his old age.
If Pa has dough they hate to see some woman get her hands on him because it cuts down their share of the loot.
My brother had it pegged just right. After his wife passed away he married a lovely woman against the violent objections of his daughters. They wanted an agreement drawn up stating that the second wife would get only 10% of his estate. He told them, "Nothing doing — I raised you kids, sent you all to college and now that you're married I'm going to let your husbands take care of you." — WISE OL' COOT
CONFIDENTIAL TO RELIEVE ED: You did what was best for the kids. Tell him to be sure and write every month — even if it's only a check.
Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.
Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers . . .
Answers Your Problems
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl almost 12 years old and I think I have a problem.
Last night during dinner my father asked my sister to get up and bring him a glass of milk. All I said was, "Are you too lazy to get the milk yourself, Dad?" He blew right up and yelled that I had opened my big mouth once too often and I wasn't getting any allowance next week. He also said I couldn't go to a show Saturday.
I said, "Why don't you make me a real hermit and cut my phone privileges, too?" He answered, "Thanks for the suggestion" and he did.
I always thought in a democracy people could say whatever they wanted. How about this? — SLAVE LABOR
DEAR SLAVE: Freedom of speech does not extend to sassing parents. Kids who speak disrespectfully to Mom and Dad should be hauled back in line promptly. Your father was perfectly right to clobber you on the spot.
DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week I received a letter from my 33-year-old son. He's in the Army stationed up north.
His letter was pages long and mostly about a fine girl he had met. He's in love and wants to get married right away. Toward the end of the letter I thought I was seeing things. He wrote: "She is pregnant and the baby isn't mine. I want to marry her and be a father to her child."
Three questions are running through my mind. Please help me decide. (1) Does this girl really love my son or is she just looking for a legal father for her baby? (2) Will I be able to love this child as I love my other grandchildren knowing there's none of our family blood in his veins? (3) What will our friends think? — ABX

DEAR ABX: If your son marries this girl — and he probably will — you must believe that (1) She loves him and is not just looking for a legal father for her child. (2) Resolve to love the baby as you do your other grandchildren. He is not to blame for the circumstances of his birth. (3) The opinions of your friends should be of no importance. Keep them out of this.
DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every so often someone writes in to complain that an aging father is getting married for a second time. Usually the grown kids don't like it.
I'm an unmarried member of a large family, and in my 65 years of "relative-watching" I've seen plenty. If Pa has no dough the kids are happy to see him marry some nice woman who will take care of him and keep him out of their hair in his old age.
If Pa has dough they hate to see some woman get her hands on him because it cuts down their share of the loot.

My brother had it pegged just right. After his wife passed away he married a lovely woman against the violent objections of his daughters. They wanted an agreement drawn up stating that the second wife would get only 10% of his estate. He told them, "Nothing doing — I raised you kids, sent you all to college and now that you're married I'm going to let your husbands take care of you." — WISE OL' COOT
CONFIDENTIAL TO RELIEVE
ED: You did what was best for the kids. Tell him to be sure and write every month — even if it's only a check.
Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.
Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Moonlighting Myth Exploded

Should government employees, particularly local police officers and firemen, be allowed to take on part-time jobs in the evenings or over weekends? New York City currently is wrestling with this question and to date has come up with two somewhat contradictory answers.

As to firemen, the city's administrators have decided that those earning less than $8,000 a year in city employ may hold outside, "casual," jobs. But policemen, who are officers of the law, whether or not in uniform, have been barred from the practice of "moonlighting."

The term "moonlighters" originally was coined to describe workers who have one full-time job and work regularly on another in the evenings or on weekends. They are typically thought of as factory workers who, having achieved a short work week through union contract, prefer to work at a second job rather than to enjoy greater leisure.

Now, a special labor force report by the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics explodes the myth. In a survey taken last December, the bureau found that out of three million workers with more than one job (4.5 per cent of the total work force), only 700,000 were factory workers on their primary job. According to the report, multiple jobholding was most prevalent in government, where almost nine per cent of the employees have other jobs, and in education.

Reasons workers take outside jobs were not explored in the bureau's report, but it is generally assumed that the need for more income is one of the most important.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Let's Not Start A Fight

It seems that a good, old-fashioned fight has developed between Pierre Salinger, President-elect Kennedy's press agent, and Bill Loeb, the rambunctious publisher of the "Manchester (N.H.) Union Leader." Salinger, who managed the publicity for Senator Kennedy's campaign, was irked by Loeb's methods of presenting the news. Loeb is a very old hand at this sort of thing, coming by it since childhood. His father was Theodore Roosevelt's secretary and quite a man with the press. Bill has been in the newspaper business all his life and is not a spoon-fed personality. He prefers a fight and finds one with friend or foe with the greatest of ease.

Loeb's attitude toward the press is wholly unorthodox. He believes in what the schools of journalism call personal journalism, the kind practiced in the old days by Horace Greeley, Charles Dana, William Randolph Hearst, Joseph Pulitzer, James Gordon Bennett and other such very aggressive, impudent and, at times, imprudent men. Loeb uses the editorials of his newspapers to lead public opinion. In fact, the editorial in Great Britain is still called a "leader" because it is intended to lead. No public official should quarrel with criticism.

As journalism is developing in the United States, libel lawyers, governmental press agents, officeholders and similar impediments exercise a censorship which would be intolerable were it not that it cannot altogether be helped.

Take, for instance, libel. It used to be that a jury gave a plaintiff one cent damages and told him to go to the devil. Today, a libel suit over nothing brings enormous damages. Most persons declared to be libeled cannot be libeled because of the nature of their activities. They should be exposed to the public view for what they are. And it is the purpose of the press to expose them. But along comes a jury, often consisting of 12 more or less incompetent men or women, who would not know a libel if they saw one. Unless the press is free to tell the truth, it has no greater value than a comic strip.

We suffer, in this country, from under-exposure of great evils. This has been true since the Roosevelt Administration. The principal value of the Congressional committee has been that it gave legality to much material that could otherwise not be exposed to the American people without devastating risk. The word, Communist, for instance, has become sacrosanct. Under various court decisions a man may be designated as a Republican, Democrat, Jew, Protestant, Catholic, or most anything else, but he may not be referred to as a Communist unless he publicly admits the designation.

Ignorant persons ask: "Do you mean that he is a card-carrying Communist?" What does the phrase, card-carrying, mean? Who carries cards? I have most of my life been a Republican but do I carry a card? Where would I get one? The Communist Party does not issue cards to please those who want to see them. But when a man delivers speeches of a Communist nature, attends Communist meetings, holds office in Communist organizations, is held in exalted esteem by the Communist Party, he is a Communist no matter what an ill-informed judge says about it. Is Khrushchev a card-carrying Communist? I will wager that he carries no card. But make no mistake, he is the international head of the party, card or no card.

What is required is not less criticism but more of it. John Kennedy is a young man who has never been a stuffed shirt. He will need friends in the press and he will have them if he deserves them. Active, alive newspapermen are, however, resentful of the efforts of government officials and courts to deprive the American people of the essential news and of just exposure and criticism. It is now a battle of ingenuity in writing copy which can get by hair-splitting lawyers and those who fear the dire financial consequences of suits. A $500,000 libel suit is an absurdity. No one can be done that much harm. If one's reputation is worth that much, he has no fear of exposure, for there is nothing to expose.

(I never lost a libel suit; therefore this is not inspired by anything personal.)

Not An Easy Route

Cabinet System Is A Travesty On Democracy

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The American people are witnessing again a travesty on representative government — the selection of the Cabinet by a President-elect.

Not one of the men who will wield tremendous power over a huge department of the federal government was elected by the people. Not one of them was proposed for Cabinet membership before the election so that the people could have a chance to voice their approval or disapproval.

The fact that the same thing would be happening if the President-elect today were a Republican, or that the identical process has been followed again and again in the past by both parties, doesn't make the whole system any more desirable.

To the other democracies of the world, the American system appears to be unrepresentative — the people have little to say, and the vesting of vast powers in one man at the top resembles far more the autocratic than the democratic formula.

In the newspaper reports about prospective members of the Cabinet, the talk is of the political service rendered during the campaign by various personages and the importance of rewarding them. This is a narrow approach. It ignores the greater importance of rewarding the hopes of millions of people who, when they voted for the winning ticket, expected something better than merely political selections.

The New York "Times," which editorially supported Senator Kennedy during the campaign, showed its concern recently as it noted newspaper stories about certain persons being considered for high office because of political service rather than ability. The "Times" quoted particularly a campaign speech by Mr. Kennedy in which he said:

"Should I be elected President, it would be my intention to ask the ablest men in the country to make whatever sacrifice is required to bring to the government a ministry of the best available talent. . . . for no government is better than the men who compose it — and I want the best. . . . All appointments, both high and low, will be made on the basis of ability — without regard to race, creed, national origin, sex, section or occupation."

The "Times" declared that "the promise could not be clearer, the pledge more solemn," and pointed out that, if this pledge means anything, it "means that political gratitude will be totally insufficient reason for appointment to major federal office."

This, indeed, is what the country as a whole, irrespective of party, expects of the President-elect.

What other men did before when they won the Presidency doesn't justify a breaking of the splendid pledge given by Mr. Kennedy during the last campaign.

The fact is, however, that the names of many persons who helped in pre-convention or post-convention efforts to win the electoral votes of key states have been bandied about in the press as likely selections. Whether these were trial balloons or whether they reflected the ambitions of certain influential persons trying to mould Mr. Kennedy's decisions is unknown to the public. But it seems certain that if, as rumored, the President-elect is seriously considering some of the names being mentioned, he is disregarding some of the principal points in his pledge.

Picking a Cabinet is no easy task, but the regrettable custom

Secretary Anderson's GI Son Ribs Him For Bringing Families Home

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Treasury Anderson, chief architect of the send-dependents-home order, ran into an argument from one disgruntled GI in Europe recently—his son.

During his mission to West Germany, Secretary and Mrs. Anderson took time out to spend Thanksgiving with their GI son. Twenty-year-old Dick, who has no dependents, chided his dad for breaking up the families of his friends in order to save overseas dollars. He kept needing his father even during the Thanksgiving dinner.

"Do you think it will hurt our balance of payments if I have a little wine?" he asked.

Turning serious, the Secretary of the Treasury explained that tourist travel and industrial expenditures overseas could not be restricted without an act of Congress. The government had to take what steps were open to curb the outflow of dollars.

After a long, patient explanation, Anderson asked his son: "What would you do?"

"Just let us gripe about it," retorted Dick with a twinkle.

The Secretary's lecture made such an impression on Mrs. Anderson that she was almost afraid to spend any dollars overseas. She went shopping one afternoon in Bonn with Mrs. Douglas Dillon, wife of the Under Secretary of State.

They spied some lovely plates—price: $90 each. They wanted to buy but didn't. Their husbands, they remembered, had come to Germany to reduce dollar expenditures.

Mrs. Anderson ended up buying a few bottles of perfume, costing $73, and Mrs. Dillon spent a few dollars for two small oil paintings.

NOTE—The ladies were miffed over press reports that they wore fancy fur coats to Europe. Actually Mrs. Dillon brought along a fur-trimmed raincoat, and Mrs. Anderson wore a cloth coat with a seaskin trim. They remarked that Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, wife of the Vice President-elect came to Europe in furs and did not get castigated in the press. Apparently Democrats are now getting the press immunity formerly reserved for Republicans.

Texas Catholics

Ex-President Herbert Hoover told this story to Cardinal Spellman and others at the football Old-Timers Dinner in New York recently:

Southern Methodist was playing Notre Dame. Crowds for both teams were going wild, and among them two nuns got up and cheered frantically for S.M.U.

"Sisters," reproved a priest, "Don't you know that Notre Dame is of our faith?"

"Yes, father," replied the nuns, "But we're from Texas."

City Boy's Rural Problems

Jack Kennedy, the boy from Back Bay Boston, now finds himself right in the middle of a battle involving the rivers and wide open spaces of the Far West.

Specifically he is in the middle of a tug-of-war over the harnessing of water in California and Arizona and the question of whether farmers who get the advantage of federal irrigation shall be permitted to hold more than 160 acres.

There have been times when western ranchers waged gun battles over water, and some of Kennedy's close friends are waging the same kind of battles, verbally, today. The problem seems far removed from the placid Charles River on which Kennedy used to row when a student at Harvard.

The current battle is over who shall be appointed Under Secretary of the Interior. A delegation of Kennedy's strong supporters called on him last week to urge Clyde Ellis as Under Secretary. This delegation included Alex Radin of the Public Power Association, Jim Patton, head of the Farmers Union, Pat Greathouse of the CIO, Ken Hollum, former Senatorial candidate from South Dakota, and Clyde Ellis himself.

Next day two other close friends of Kennedy's called—Gov. Pat Brown and Sen. Clair Ellis of California. They urged the appointment of Jim Carr of Sacramento as Under Secretary of the Interior.

Battle Over 160-Acre Limit

Both Ellis and Carr are good men. Carr was described by Governor Brown as "the best water man in the business."

"He's the head of my water commission and of the Sacramento Municipal Utility District, where he's given the people of Sacramento the lowest rates in the country. He's saved California millions of dollars," said Brown.

Carr's brother Francis happens to be a lobbyist hired by the giant West Coast utility, Pacific Gas and Electric. Despite that, Carr battled against P. G. and E. for the Trinity River project.

On the other hand Clyde Ellis, ex-Congressman from Arkansas and astute head of the Rural Electrification co-ops, has been a long-time battler for public power and cheap utility rates. He knows every river in the United States and every Congressman on Capitol Hill.

Californians also claim that since Secretary of the Interior- to be Udall is from Arizona, a Californian should be made Under Secretary. There has been a vitriolic controversy between California and Arizona over the waters of the Colorado River.

Chief difference between the two candidates for Under Secretary of the Interior, however, is the 160-acre limitation. This limitation was imposed by Congress in Teddy Roosevelt's day to prevent big land owners from gobbling up large tracts of irrigated land when the federal government pioneered a reclamation project. The theory is that if the taxpayers pay for irrigation, then the benefits should be evenly distributed among a lot of little land owners, not concentrated among a few big ones.

So far Congress has stuck by this principle. And the young President-elect from Boston, where there's not much acreage and no big rivers, will have to decide whether he's for big acreage or little acreage, for California water or Arizona water, in picking the personnel of his Interior Department.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

(Reprinted by Request)

There are some children who do not believe in Santa. This is a sad thing, because I believe in Santa and I know that he is real. The reason why so few big boys and girls believe in him is that they have never seen him. This is silly because the same boys and girls have never seen air either, and they believe in that.

We see Santa's assistants all the time. They are in department stores and on street corners, and they look good in their make-believe whiskers and their padded stomachs and red suits, but they are not Santa. The real Santa is a spirit. He died 1600 years ago and he lives on in the sky above us as a saint. If a saint can hear our prayers, then Santa can read our letters and listen to us when we ask his assistants for something at Christmas time.

The real Santa is known by several names. In many countries, he is called Santa Claus, Kris Kringle, La Befana, Yule Tomten, St. Nicholas and Christkindl. His real name was Nicholas and he was born in Patara, Asia Minor, around the year 285. He grew up as a holy man—never dreaming that he would some day be St. Nicholas—and he became a priest.

In time he was appointed Bishop of Myra. He was, we can assume, stout and wore snowy whiskers. He loved children most of all, and long before he realized that he was a saint, Nicholas became noted for his miracles. He didn't know how they happened. All he had to do was to hope and pray hard enough for something and wham! it happened.

One of the men of Patara, for example, had three daughters. In those days, a girl couldn't get married unless she had some money to give her husband to help him in his career. The man of Patara had no money at all. Some friends advised him that it would be best if he sold his daughters as slaves.

Nicholas heard about it and he thought it was dreadful. He began to hope and pray that something good would happen and one night at Christmas he found himself with a bag of gold. He hurried to the home of the poor man of Patara and dropped the bag of gold down the chimney. In a few weeks, the oldest girl was married.

The saint hoped for a second bag of gold, and got it. Then a third bag. In time, all three girls were happily married, and no one knew that Nicholas was the man who sent the bags of gold. He didn't think it was a good idea for anyone to know, because he didn't want a lot of thanks for something given to him by God.

He did a lot of good things for grownups, but children were the special favorites of Nicholas and he liked to hold off until the birthday of the Infant Saviour before sneaking gifts to them. For a while, he was thrown into prison in chains because he was a Christian, but he kept hoping hard and praying for good things, and good things always happened.

The Romans, for example, got a new emperor named Constantine and the first thing he did was to free all the Christians in the prisons. Nicholas rubbed the smooth spots where the chains had been around his wrists and ankles, and he went back home and started to do good things for boys and girls.

He was getting pretty old when three men were sentenced to death in Constantinople. They had heard about Nicholas, so they began to hope in a hurry that he would help them. That night, Nicholas appeared in a dream to the emperor. In it, Nicholas warned his majesty that he would never have a moment's peace unless he freed the three men at once because they had done nothing wrong.

In the morning, Constantine ordered the warden to send the three men to their homes. These are only a few of the things he did. In time, Nicholas died. Centuries later, his bones were taken to Bari, Italy. Even there, he continued to perform miracles for grownups as well as children. He did some of his best work at Christmas, but if someone needed a little miracle in the summer-time, St. Nicholas came through just the same.

Soon he will be all over the cold night sky with his reindeer and his sled. His whiskers will be split by the wind, and his blue eyes will be watering in the cold. How can anyone say that they do not believe in Santa just because they cannot see him?

He's there. Just hope hard for something and you'll see . . .

Exaggerated Reaction To Stress Is Abnormal

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Mrs. Smith was grief-stricken when one of her sons was killed in an auto accident. Mr. Smith also was heartbroken, but he was more stable than his wife and adjusted to their loss gradually.

Meanwhile, his wife refused to entertain her old friends for months thereafter, talked constantly about her loss, and preserved the room of the dead boy just as he had left it on the day of the fatal accident.

Mrs. Smith was emotionally unstable. It is normal to grieve but abnormal to continue mourning indefinitely and to such an extent that living is disrupted. Many people respond to emotional shock, fatigue, accidents, and illnesses in an exaggerated fashion. They are otherwise normal but lack the balance needed to face life's problems.

The same can be said of the hot tempered man who lets off steam at the wrong time. He may get so mad he forgets to be discreet or neglects the job entirely.

Sulking is another form of exaggerated reaction to stress and the same can be said of persons who are too sarcastic or overly virtuous. Even crying at the drop of a hat may be considered evidence of a hair trigger makeup.

Many of these childish reactions originate in hidden and forgotten experiences during the early years of life. In others, the victim never matured properly because of growing up with unstable parents whom they mimicked. In other instances, the parents did not give enough love and affection to encourage a sense of security.

Little can be done to change these basic characteristics unless the victim recognizes the handicap and realizes that many others are in the same boat. It takes a sense of humor, self-discipline, and working at it constantly.

DIFFERENT RAYS

J. Y. writes: Does excessive use of an intra-red lamp (for arthritis) encourage cancer of the skin?

REPLY

No. Cancer is more likely to be encouraged by the ultra-violet rays (suntan) of the spectrum. The infra-red, or heat rays, are on a different wave length.

COFFEE NOSE

R. J. W. writes: Could too much coffee keep the nose red?

REPLY

Yes, especially if the redness represents acne rosacea. This skin disorder is associated with eating and drinking foods, spices, whisky, and other beverages that dilate the skin capillaries.

What's wrong with this sleeping posture? It's one of the best.

REPLY

No. The skin must be penetrated by teeth to cause infection.

To the limit of space questions pertinent to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

The average daily output of a U. S. bituminous coal miner jumped from 6.26 tons in 1948 to 12.22 tons in 1959 with the help of automation and mechanization. Bituminous coal mining in the U. S. is now more than 90 per cent mechanized according to the National Coal Policy Conference.

Coal fires the boilers generating 56 per cent of all electric energy produced in the United States.

It is believed that coal was first used by the ancient Chinese, probably as far back as 1500 B. C.

The earliest reference to coal in the United States is found on a map prepared by the Joliet and Marquette expedition to the Mississippi River in 1673.

Almost 270 million dollars worth of chemicals produced from coal are sold each year to create useful products for the American consumer.

Coal was first shipped commercially in the United States more than 200 years ago, the National Coal Policy Conference reports.

A ton of coal goes into the production of every ton of steel.

Through the process of hydro-generation it is likely that in the years to come gasoline, oils and various pure chemicals will be produced in volume from coal.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A windy politician recently startled an audience of university students by introducing Carl Sandburg as "the poet Lariat of Chicago." The same distinguished gentleman concluded a campaign address with a ringing, "What we have got to do for our fair city is to restore to our fair city all those wonderful things it never had."

To show you what statehood has meant to Alaska, John Storey reports that the chain stores up there are now featuring unfrozen foods and that, although the Eskimos still drive dog sleds, they no longer require the services of dogs. They just hitch up eight Volkswagens.

called to a burly gorilla at the end of the bench and hollered, "Go in there and get ferocious."

"Sure, Chief," grunted the gorilla. "What's his number?"

Moonlighting
Myth Exploded

Should government employees, particularly local police officers and firemen, be allowed to take on part-time jobs in the evenings or over weekends? New York City currently is wrestling with this question and to date has come up with two somewhat contradictory answers.

As to firemen, the city's administrators have decided that those earning less than $8,000 a year in city employ may hold outside, "casual," jobs. But policemen, who are officers of the law, whether or not in uniform, have been barred from the practice of "moonlighting."

The term "moonlighters" originally was coined to describe workers who have one full-time job and work regularly on another in the evenings or on weekends. They are typically thought of as factory workers who, having achieved a short work week through union contract, prefer to work at a second job rather than to enjoy greater leisure.

Now, a special labor force report by the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics explodes the myth. In a survey taken last December, the bureau found that out of three million workers with more than one job (4.5 per cent of the total work force), only 700,000 were factory workers on their primary job. According to the report, multiple jobholding was most prevalent in government, where almost nine per cent of the employes have other jobs, and in education.

Reasons workers take outside jobs were not explored in the bureau's report, but it is generally assumed that the need for more income is one of the most important.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky
Let's Not Start A Fight

It seems that a good, old-fashioned fight has developed between Pierre Salinger, President-elect Kennedy's press agent, and Bill Loeb, the rambunctious publisher of the "Manchester (N.H.) Union Leader," Salinger, who managed the publicity for Senator Kennedy's campaign, was irked by Loeb's methods of presenting the news. Loeb is a very old hand at this sort of thing, coming by it since childhood. His father was Theodore Roosevelt's secretary and quite a man with the press. Bill has been in the newspaper business all his life and is not a spoon-fed personality. He prefers a fight and finds one with friend or foe with the greatest of ease.

Loeb's attitude toward the press is wholly unorthodox. He believes in what the schools of journalism call personal journalism, the kind practiced in the old days by Horace Greeley, Charles Dana, William Randolph Hearst, Joseph Pulitzer, James Gordon Bennett and other such very aggressive, impudent and, at times, imprudent men. Loeb uses the editorials of his newspapers to lead public opinion. In fact, the editorial in Great Britain is still called a "leader" because it is intended to lead. No public official should quarrel with criticism.

As journalism is developing in the United States, libel lawyers, governmental press agents, officeholders and similar impedimenta exercise a censorship which would be intolerable were it not that it cannot altogether be helped.

Take, for instance, libel. It used to be that a jury gave a plaintiff one cent damages and told him to go to the devil. Today, a libel suit over nothing brings enormous damages. Most persons declared to be libeled cannot be libeled because of the nature of their activities. They should be exposed to the public view for what they are. And it is the purpose of the press to expose them. But along comes a jury, often consisting of 12 more or less incompetent men or women, who would not know a libel if they saw one. Unless the press is free to tell the truth, it has no greater value than a comic strip.

We suffer, in this country, from under-exposure of great evils. This has been true since the Roosevelt Administration. The principal value of the Congressional committee has been that it gave legality to much material that could otherwise not be exposed to the American people without devastating risk. The word, Communist, for instance, has become sacrosanct. Under various court decisions a man may be designated as a Republican, Democrat, Jew, Protestant, Catholic, or most anything else, but he may not be referred to as a Communist unless he publicly admits the designation.

Ignorant persons ask: "Do you mean that he is a card-carrying Communist?" What does the phrase, card-carrying, mean? Who carries cards? I have most of my life been a Republican but do I carry a card? Where would I get one? The Communist Party does not issue cards to please those who want to see them. But when a man delivers speeches of a Communist nature, attends Communist meetings, holds office in Communist organizations, is held in exalted esteem by the Communist Party, he is a Communist no matter what an ill-informed judge says about it. Is Khrushchev a card-carrying Communist? I will wager that he carries no card. But make no mistake, he is the international head of the party, card or no card.

What is required is not less criticism but more of it. John Kennedy is a young man who has never been a stuffed shirt. He will need friends in the press and he will have them if he deserves them. Active, alive newspapermen are, however, resentful of the efforts of government officials and courts to deprive the American people of the essential news and of just exposure and criticism. It is now a battle of ingenuity in writing copy which can get by hair-splitting lawyers and those who fear the dire financial consequences of suits. A $500,000 libel suit is an absurdity. No one can be done that much harm. If one's reputation is worth that much, he has no fear of exposure, for there is nothing to expose.

(I never lost a libel suit; therefore this is not inspired by anything personal.)

Not An Easy Route

Cabinet System Is A Travesty On Democracy

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The American people are witnessing again a travesty on representative government — the selection of the Cabinet by a President-elect.

Not one of the men who will wield tremendous power over a huge department of the federal government was elected by the people. Not one of them was proposed for Cabinet membership before the election so that the people could have a chance to voice their approval or disapproval.

The fact that the same thing would be happening if the President-elect today were a Republican, or that the identical process has been followed again and again in the past by both parties, doesn't make the whole system any more desirable.

To the other democracies of the world, the American system appears to be unrepresentative — the people have little to say, and the vesting of vast powers in one man at the top resembles far more the autocratic than the democratic formula.

In the newspaper reports about prospective members of the Cabinet, the talk is of the political service rendered during the campaign by various personages and the importance of rewarding them. This is a narrow approach. It ignores the greater importance of rewarding the hopes of millions of people who, when they voted for the winning ticket, expected something better than merely political selections.

The New York "Times," which editorially supported Senator Kennedy during the campaign, showed its concern recently as it noted newspaper stories about certain persons being considered for high office because of political service rather than ability. The "Times" quoted particularly a campaign speech by Mr. Kennedy in which he said:

"Should I be elected President, it would be my intention to ask the ablest men in the country to make whatever sacrifice is required to bring to the government a ministry of the best available talent. . . . for no government is better than the men who compose it — and I want the best. . . . All appointments, both high and low, will be made on the basis of ability — without regard to race, creed, national origin, sex, section or occupation."

The "Times" declared that "the promise could not be clearer, the pledge more solemn," and pointed out that, if this pledge means anything, it "means that political gratitude will be totally insufficient reason for appointment to major federal office."

This, indeed, is what the country as a whole, irrespective of party, expects of the President-elect.

What other men did before when they won the Presidency doesn't justify a breaking of the splendid pledge given by Mr. Kennedy during the last campaign.

The fact is, however, that the names of many persons who helped in pre-convention or post-convention efforts to win the electoral votes of key states have been bandied about in the press as likely selections. Whether these were trial balloons or whether they reflected the ambitions of certain influential persons trying to mould Mr. Kennedy's decisions is unknown to the public. But it seems certain that if, as rumored, the President-elect is seriously considering some of the names being mentioned, he is disregarding some of the principal points in his pledge.

Picking a Cabinet is no easy task, but the regrettable custom

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

MAIL GOES THROUGH—Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield is proud of the giant strides his department has made to modernize and speed up delivery of the U. S. mails.

He has made great steps to bring automation to letterhandling, instantaneous mail delivery by facsimile transmission, and use of airmail between large cities even for regularly four-cent-stamped mail.

About the only thing Summerfield's not proud of these days is the fact he has been unable to persuade Congress to increase mail rates and put the department on a paying basis.

In extolling the many virtues of the U. S. mail service, Summerfield recently decided to say a kind word for the so-called "star route" carriers — the individuals who carry the U. S. mail to remote places on a contract basis.

While most use trucks and cars, Summerfield proudly noted that 74 still use horses, 75 travel in boats, one uses his own airplane, one uses skis and, in remote Alaska, one still makes his appointed rounds by dogsled.

Apparently, all's fair in love, war and mail delivery.

Secretary Anderson's GI Son Ribs Him For Bringing Families Home

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Treasury Anderson, chief architect of the send-dependents-home order, ran into an argument from one disgruntled GI in Europe recently—his son.

During his mission to West Germany, Secretary and Mrs. Anderson took time out to spend Thanksgiving with their GI son. Twenty-year-old Dick, who has no dependents, chided his dad for breaking up the families of his friends in order to save overseas dollars. He kept needing his father even during the Thanksgiving dinner.

"Do you think it will hurt our balance of payments if I have a little wine?" he asked.

Turning serious, the Secretary of the Treasury explained that tourist travel and industrial expenditures overseas could not be restricted without an act of Congress. The government had to take what steps were open to curb the outflow of dollars.

After a long, patient explanation, Anderson asked his son: "What would you do?"

"Just let us gripe about it," retorted Dick with a twinkle.

The Secretary's lecture made such an impression on Mrs. Anderson that she was almost afraid to spend any dollars overseas. She went shopping one afternoon in Bonn with Mrs. Douglas Dillon, wife of the Under Secretary of State.

They spied some lovely plates—price: $90 each. They wanted to buy but didn't. Their husbands, they remembered, had come to Germany to reduce dollar expenditures.

Mrs. Anderson ended up buying a few bottles of perfume, costing $73, and Mrs. Dillon spent a few dollars for two small oil paintings.

NOTE—The ladies were miffed over press reports that they wore fancy fur coats to Europe. Actually Mrs. Dillon brought along a fur-trimmed raincoat, and Mrs. Anderson wore a cloth coat with a sealskin trim. They remarked that Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, wife of the Vice President-elect came to Europe in furs and did not get castigated in the press. Apparently Democrats are now getting the press immunity formerly reserved for Republicans.

Texas Catholics

Ex-President Herbert Hoover told this story to Cardinal Spellman and others at the football Old-Timers Dinner in New York recently:

Southern Methodist was playing Notre Dame. Crowds for both teams were going wild, and among them two nuns got up and cheered frantically for S.M.U.

"Sisters," reproved a priest, "Don't you know that Notre Dame is of our faith?"

"Yes, father," replied the nuns, "But we're from Texas."

City Boy's Rural Problems

Jack Kennedy, the boy from Back Bay Boston, now finds himself right in the middle of a battle involving the rivers and wide open spaces of the Far West.

Specifically he is in the middle of a tug-of-war over the harnessing of water in California and Arizona and the question of whether farmers who get the advantage of federal irrigation shall be permitted to hold more than 160 acres.

There have been times when western ranchers waged gun battles over water, and some of Kennedy's close friends are waging the same kind of battles, verbally, today. The problem seems far removed from the placid Charles River on which Kennedy used to row when a student at Harvard.

The current battle is over who shall be appointed Under Secretary of the interior. A delegation of Kennedy's strong supporters called on him last week to urge Clyde Ellis as Under Secretary. This delegation included Alex Radin of the Public Power Association, Jim Patton, head of the Farmers Union, Pat Greathouse of the CIO, Ken Hollum, former Senatorial candidate from South Dakota, and Clyde Ellis himself.

Next day two other close friends of Kennedy's called—Gov. Pat Brown and Sen. Clair Engle of California. They urged the appointment of Jim Carr of Sacramento as Under Secretary of the Interior.

Battle Over 160-Acre Limit

Both Ellis and Carr are good men. Carr was described by Governor Brown as "the best water man in the business."

"He's the head of my water commission and of the Sacramento Municipal Utility District, where he's given the people of Sacramento the lowest rates in the country. He's saved California millions of dollars," said Brown.

Carr's brother Francis happens to be a lobbyist hired by the giant West Coast utility, Pacific Gas and Electric. Despite that, Carr battled against P. G. and E. for the Trinity River project.

On the other hand Clyde Ellis, ex-Congressman from Arkansas and astute head of the Rural Electrification co-ops, has been a long-time battler for public power and cheap utility rates. He knows every river in the United States and every Congressman on Capitol Hill.

Californians also claim that since Secretary of the Interior-De Udall is from Arizona, a Californian should be made Under Secretary. There has been a vitriolic controversy between California and Arizona over the waters of the Colorado River.

Chief difference between the two candidates for Under Secretary of the Interior, However, is the 160-acre limitation. This limitation was imposed by Congress in Teddy Roosevelt's day to prevent big land owners from gobbling up large tracts of irrigated land where the federal government pioneered a reclamation project. The theory is that if the taxpayers pay for irrigation, then the benefits should be evenly distributed among a lot of little land owners, not concentrated among a few big ones.

So far Congress has stuck by this principle. And the young President-elect from Boston, where there's not much acreage and no big rivers, will have to decide whether he's for big acreage or little acreage, for California water or Arizona water, in picking the personnel of his Interior Department.

There are some children who do not believe in Santa. This is a sad thing, because I believe in Santa and I know that he is real. The reason why so few big boys and girls believe in him is that they have never seen him. This is silly because the same boys and girls have never seen air either, and they believe in that.

We see Santa's assistants all the time. They are in department stores and on street corners, and they look good in their make-believe whiskers and their padded stomachs and red suits, but they are not Santa. The real Santa is a spirit. He died 1600 years ago and he lives on in the sky above us as a saint. If a saint can hear our prayers, then Santa can read our letters and listen to us when we ask his assistants for something at Christmas time.

The real Santa is known by several names. In many countries, he is called Santa Claus, Kris Kringle, La Befana, Yule Tomten, St. Nicholas and Christkindli. His real name was Nicholas and he was born in Patara, Asia Minor, around the year 285. He grew up as a holy man—never dreaming that he would some day be St. Nicholas—and he became a priest.

In time he was appointed Bishop of Myra. He was, we can assume, stout and wore snowy whiskers. He loved children most of all, and long before he realized that he was a saint, Nicholas became noted for his miracles. He didn't know how they happened. All he had to do was to hope and pray hard enough for something and whom! it happened.

One of the men of Patara, for example, had three daughters. In those days, a girl couldn't get married unless she had some money to give her husband to help him in his career. The man of Patara had no money at all. Some friends advised him that it would be best if he sold his daughters as slaves.

Nicholas heard about it and he thought it was dreadful. He began to hope and pray that something good would happen and one night at Christmas time he found himself with a bag of gold. He hurried to the home of the poor man of Patara and dropped the bag of gold down the chimney. In a few weeks, the oldest girl was married.

The saint hoped for a second bag of gold, and got it. Then a third bag. In time, all three girls were happily married, and no one knew that Nicholas was the man who sent the bags of gold. He didn't think it was a good idea for anyone to know, because he didn't want a lot of thanks for something given to him by God.

He did a lot of good things for grownups, but children were the special favorites of Nicholas and he liked to hold off until the birthday of the Infant Saviour before sneaking gifts to them. For a while, he was thrown into prison in chains because he was a Christian, but he kept hoping hard and praying for good things, and good things always happened.

The Romans, for example, got a new emperor named Constantine and the first thing he did was to free all the Christians in the prisons. Nicholas rubbed the smooth spots where the chains had been around his wrists and ankles, and he went back home and started to do good things for boys and girls.

He was getting pretty old when three men were sentenced to death in Constantinople. They had heard about Nicholas, so they began to hope in a hurry that he would help them. That night, Nicholas appeared in a dream to the emperor. In it, Nicholas warned his majesty that he would never have a moment's peace unless he freed the three men at once because they had done nothing wrong.

In the morning, Constantine ordered the warden to send the three men to their homes. These are only a few of the things he did. In time, Nicholas died. Centuries later, his bones were taken to Bari, Italy. Even there, he continued to perform miracles for grownups as well as children. He did some of his best work at Christmas, but if someone needed a little miracle in the summer time, St. Nicholas came through just the same.

Soon he will be all over the cold night sky with his reindeer and his sled. His whiskers will be split by the wind, and his blue eyes will be watering in the cold. How can anyone say that they do not believe in Santa just because they cannot see him?

He's there. Just hope hard for something and you'll see . . .

The average daily output of a U. S. bituminous coal mine jumped from 6.26 tons in 1948 to 12.22 tons in 1959 with the help of automation and mechanization. Bituminous coal mining in the U. S. is now more than 90 per cent mechanized according to the National Coal Policy Conference.

Coal fires the boilers generating 56 per cent of all electric energy produced in the United States. It is believed that coal was first used by the ancient Chinese, probably as far back as 1500 B. C.

The earliest reference to coal in the United States is found on a map prepared by the Joliet and Marquette expedition to the Mississippi River in 1673.

Almost 270 million dollars worth of chemicals produced from coal are sold each year to create useful products for the American consumer.

Coal was first shipped commercially in the United States more than 200 years ago, the National Coal Policy Conference reports.

A ton of coal goes into the production of every ton of steel.

Through the process of hydrogenation it is likely that in the years to come gasoline, oils and various pure chemicals will be produced in volume from coal.

Los Angeles Knocks Colts Out Of First Place, 10-3

Billy Wade's 66-Yard Run Decides Tilt

Baltimore Fails To Score TD First Time In 48 Games

GAME STATISTICS

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Statistics of the Los Angeles Rams-Baltimore Colts game:

By JOE ST. AMANT
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Quarterback Billy Wade, topping a fine performance with a 66-yard touchdown run, steered the Los Angeles Rams to an upset 10-3 victory over Baltimore Sunday, knocking the Colts out of a tie for the NFL Western Division lead.

Wade was aided immeasurably by a great Ram defensive effort. Ram defenders shut out Colt quarterback John Unitas without a touchdown pass. Unitas had passed for at least one touchdown in the past 47 games going all the way back to 1956.

The Colt quarterback spent a great deal of time on his back as the tough Ram defense, including Lou Michaels, Les Richter, and Lamar Lundy, put on a tremendous rush. Another effective Ram defender was Ollie Matson. Matson, replaced at fullback on the offensive team by Joe Marconi, was effective in knocking down Colt passes.

This is the first time since 1956 that the Colts failed to score a touchdown in a game.

Myhra Kicks Goal

In the first quarter the Colts penetrated to the Ram two yard line, but had to settle for a field goal from the nine by Steve Myhra.

The Colts had a first down on the Ram five, but were tossed back — principally on two smashing tackles by Matson.

Despite the loss, Unitas set a new all-time one-season passing record when he gained 182 yards on 17 of 38 attempts. His total for the season is 2,939 with one game to go. The previous record was set in 1947 by Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins who had 2,938 yards.

Wade completed 8 of 17 passes for 120 yards. He entered the game after starting field general Frank Ryan suffered a shoulder separation on a hard tackle by Colt linebacker Bill Pellington in the second quarter.

In the first half, the Ram offensive was sickly. The farthest penetration Los Angeles made was to the Baltimore 29 in the second quarter. They got that far on a pass play from Wade to end Carroll Dale, good for 63 yards.

Wade Scores TD

Midway in the third period, the Rams got the ball on a Colt punt to the Los Angeles 34. At that point Wade rolled out to his left, galloped down the north sideline. Behind good blocks by Marconi and Jim Phillips, he went all the way for a score.

Danny Villanueva kicked the extra point to make it 7-3 as the crowd of 75,461 roared its approval.

Villanueva, in the fourth period, kicked a 32-yard field goal to end the scoring for the day.

With three minutes and 45 seconds left to play, Marconi backed the Colts up to the three yard line with a 53 yard kick.

Unitas, passing 23 yards to end Lenny Moore, moved the ball down to the Ram 20. Here halfback Alex Hawkins fumbled a handoff from Unitas and George St.ugar recovered for the Rams on the 19 just 45 seconds before the end of the game.

Titans Conquer Oakland, 31-28

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New York's Al Dorow outgained the Oakland Raiders in American Football League warfare Sunday as he threw for three touchdowns and scored another for a 31-28 victory.

Dorow's final scoring pitch, a 20-yarder to Dewey Bohling, sent the Titans ahead to stay with four minutes and 12 seconds left in the game. Bill Shockley, who earlier had contributed a 27-yard field goal, booted his fourth conversion.

Dorow opened with a 73-yard scoring pass play to Art Powell on the second play of the game. He himself scored the next New York touchdown on a 12-yard run. In the second half he hit a five-yard aerial to Powell and the wrapup pitch to Bohling.

Oakland quarterback Tom Flores and halfback Tony Teresa kept the Raiders in the game all the way. Flores threw a 14-yard scoring pass to Nyle McFarlane, another for 19 to Charlie Harty and a 3-yarder to Teresa, putting the Raiders in a 28-24 lead early in the final period.

Browns Blast Title Hopes Of Chicago

Bears Are Routed By Cleveland, 42-0

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's young defensive backfield blasted Chicago's title hopes Sunday by intercepting seven passes and returning three for touchdowns — including a 92-yarder by Bernie Parrish — as the Browns routed the Bears 42-0.

The seven interceptions were run back a total of 213 yards, bettering the National Football League record of 182 yards by Los Angeles in 1952 with six interceptions.

The Browns scored twice within 80 seconds in the second period on pass interceptions. Parrish grabbed a pass by Chicago quarterback Ed Brown on the Cleveland eight and went all the way. Bobby Franklin then took another Brown pass to play later and ran 31 yards to put Cleveland in front 21-0.

Jim Brown, the league's leading rusher, gained 100 yards on 22 carries. He also scored Cleveland's fourth touchdown on a four-yard smash, capping a 52-yard, six-play drive.

Griffith Tests Luis Rodriguez Saturday Night

Paret Successfully Defends His Title

NEW YORK (UPI) — Top contender Luis Rodriguez of Cuba and fourth-ranked Emile Griffith of New York will fight Saturday in a TV 10-runder at Madison Square Garden for the right to a March shot at Benny "Kid" Paret's welterweight crown.

Paret of Cuba made a successful first defense of his 147-pound championship at the Garden last Saturday night by winning a unanimous 15-round decision over slugger Federico Thompson of Argentina, who took a blood-bath during the bout.

Either Rodriguez or Griffith would make a good challenger for the relentless Paret, who decisively snapped Slugger Thompson's unbeaten string at 32 straight bouts in their return fight Saturday.

Largely because there was no TV blackout in the New York area, the comparatively small crowd was estimated at 6,000 and the gate at $25,000. The TV fee was $50,000. It was estimated that Paret's 40 per cent of all net receipts would approximate $28,000; Thompson's 20 per cent, $14,000.

Thompson suffered a three-stitch cut in his lower lip and nicks on both cheek bones. His lip and nose bled so profusely that Dr. Samuel Swetnik examined him after the fifth and 10th rounds to determine whether the fight should be stopped.

Thompson, a slight underdog at 6-5, is nearly 33 years old. But both Griffith and Rodriguez — next Saturday's contenders — are young. Rodriguez, unbeaten in his 33 fights, is 23—the same age as champion Paret. Griffith, who suffered but two losses in his 23 bouts, is 22.

HOUSTON (AP) — George Blanda, still hobbling a bit from an ankle injury, threw three touchdown passes and kicked a 53-yard field goal Sunday as the Houston Oilers defeated the Buffalo Bills, 31-23, to wrap up the Eastern Division championship of the American Football League.

A crowd of 25,247, a season high for Houston, saw the Oilers strike for two quick first period touchdowns and then be outplayed for 25 minutes before striking for 17 more points.

Buffalo's second period domination included a 48-yard field goal by Mack Yoho and a 22-yard touchdown pass from John Green to Dan Chamberlin.

The victory sent the Oilers into the new leagues' championship playoff against the Los Angeles Chargers, winners of the Western Division. The title game will be played in Houston New Year's Day.

Closing Of Fairgo Track Suggested By Commission

Mile Ovals Would Share Cost, Divide Twelve Racing Days

BALTIMORE (AP) — A study report due for release Thursday is expected to recommend that Maryland emphasize its three major race tracks and close or consolidate some of its minor ones.

The commission studying Maryland racing reportedly will specifically suggest the closing of the half-mile track at Cumberland and with the state's three mile tracks sharing the cost and dividing the 12 racing dates.

It is also expected to propose the closing or consolidation of harness and half-mile tracks unable to operate on a sound basis.

The commission, charged with finding ways to improve Maryland racing, is headed by Sen. George B. Rasin Jr., D-Kent. It will submit its recommendations to the 1961 Maryland Legislature.

The group reportedly has decided on keeping the same number of racing dates—276 a year—but assigning them to fewer tracks.

Alternate proposals, reportedly rejected, called for more racing dates and higher taxes. The harness tracks at Ocean Downs, Laurel and Rosecroft had urged that the tax on betting be increased and that they be allowed to keep more of it.

On Friday night the "Y" hosts the Navy Enlisted Men of Annapolis at 7:30 while on Saturday night the Army Air Force Hornets of Washington, D. C., will play here at 8 o'clock.

Pic-Six Rejected

The commission is expected to recommend that the mile tracks—Bowie, Laurel and Pimlico—eliminate split seasons. Other recommendations expected are a plan of special purses and special races for Maryland horse and a rejection of any plan for off-track betting or for unusual betting systems such as "Pic-Six."

The commission reportedly will post a couple of warnings — one urging mile track operators to stop bickering or face the possibility of being taken over by a public authority. The other suggests possible damage to Maryland racing by allowing track operators to hold interests in plants outside the state.

The Pimlico management also operates the track at Charles Town, W. Va.

Changes Would Give Governor More Powers

W.Va. Constitution Amendments Asked

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Sweeping changes in West Virginia's 88-year old Constitution designed to give the governor additional power and control were proposed here by the State Constitutional Revision Commission.

One would allow the governor to serve two consecutive terms and another would abolish the elective offices of agriculture commissioner, treasurer and secretary state and allow them to be appointed by the governor.

In essence this would also set up a budget proposed by the governor and eliminate the present Board of Public Works which now has such power.

If the commission's recommendations are adopted by the 1961 Legislature they will be put on the 1962 general election ballot for ratification by voters.

Other recommended changes included:

— That the justice of the peace system be done away with in the state.

— That city and county governments may be consolidated if the people so desire, permitting even counties to merge.

— That the membership of the State Supreme Court be increased from five to seven, including one serving as chief justice.

— That the activities of about 80 present state departments, agencies, boards and commissions be combined into about 20 departments.

— That county offices no longer be constitutional posts, but governed by the legislature.

Commission chairman Homer A. Holt said the report will be submitted to the next legislature but it will be up to the commission's Policy and Procedure Committee to determine whether bills to implement the recommendations will be presented during the 1961 or 1962 session.

The policy committee is composed of the governor, speaker of the House and the president of the Senate.

Changes Would Give Governor More Powers

W.Va. Constitution Amendments Asked

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Sweeping changes in West Virginia's 88-year old Constitution designed to give the governor additional power and control were proposed here by the State Constitutional Revision Commission.

One would allow the governor to serve two consecutive terms and another would abolish the elective offices of agriculture commissioner, treasurer and secretary of state and allow them to be appointed by the governor.

In essence this would also set up a budget proposed by the governor and eliminate the present Board of Public Works which now has such power.

If the commission's recommendations are adopted by the 1961 Legislature they will be put on the 1962 general election ballot for ratification by voters.

Other recommended changes included:

—That the justice of the peace system be done away with in the state.

—That city and county governments may be consolidated if the people so desire, permitting even counties to merge.

—That the membership of the State Supreme Court be increased from five to seven, including one serving as chief justice.

—That the activities of about 80 present state departments, agencies, boards and commissions be combined into about 20 departments.

—That county offices no longer be constitutional posts, but governed by the legislature.

Commission chairman Homer A. Holt said the report will be submitted to the next legislature but it will be up to the commission's Policy and Procedure Committee to determine whether bills to implement the recommendations will be presented during the 1961 or 1962 session.

The policy committee is composed of the governor, speaker of the House and the president of the Senate.

Important trim for holiday parties: Your festive best dress!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Yule Rules For Guest Dress

As you open one invitation after party or buffet? Any party held another to a holiday party, feel between four and eight p.m. is free to fancy yourself Cinderella "dressier" . . . and so are you, preparing for the ball — as long as you don't depend on a fairy godmother to dress you in the proper taste. Let each invitation length or ballerina, but no longer, —and your own sharp instinct— tell you what to wear.

Are you asked to a holiday brunch or luncheon? For any occasion starting before four o'clock, wear a street-length dress or suit, and hat and gloves, of course. Early-day events usually suggest a tailored touch, but this is a special sparkling season, so gay accessory colors or a fancy chapeau are expected to brighten the scene.

About those gloves: Keep them on at all times out of doors, even for shaking hands with someone you meet on the street. Once indoors, remove them for shaking hands, eating, drinking and smoking. To keep them on is bad manners.

Your gentleman-escort will be correctly conservative in a dark blue or grey business suit with a white shirt, four-in-hand tie and black shoes. This is his best guest-dress for all informal daytime affairs . . . and for informal evenings, too.

Do you have a bid to an afternoon open-house, tea, cocktail party or luncheon? For any occasion starting before four o'clock, wear a street-length dress or suit, and hat and gloves, of course. Early-day events usually suggest a tailored touch, but this is a special sparkling season, so gay accessory colors or a fancy chapeau are expected to brighten the scene.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—With neither vulnerable.

as South you hold:

AK2 ♥72 ♦K73 ♠A98654

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass Pass 1 ♥ 4 ♦

What do you bid now?

A.—Double. East has made life difficult for you by his bid and the wisest strategy by far is to take your medicine and settle for what looks like a "sure profit." Exploration for the best fit is not safe at this level.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

AKJ93 ♥AKJ2 ♦J7 ♠K6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. There is a distinct aroma of slam in the air (partner's two-over-one response promises a minimum of 10 points), and it is appropriate for you to show your interest below the game level. Three hearts is preferable to a jump in no trump because of the slightly unbalanced nature of your hand and the possibility that partner might have four fairly good hearts himself. If he should return to three spades, you may try no trump on the next round.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable and as South you hold:

AK103 ♥A95 ♦KJ3 ♠KQ87

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ Pass 1 NT ?

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. A strategic move dictated by the vulnerabilities and conditions of the layout. Your best chance (or a profit in the long run) is to keep silent and hope the opponents get over-zealous. Prospects for a game you way are just about nil, but there is the possibility of a substantial penalty if you can restrain yourself for a round or two.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, opponents have a 60 part score and as South you hold:

AK1086 ♥A95 ♦3 ♠QJ654

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. The time to contest a low level contract is before the opponents get a part score not once they already have it. Furthermore, though on this type of sequence partner can usually be counted on to have some values, there can be no such assurance with the present part score situation, as West may be deliberately underbidding in order to lure on an unsuspecting opponent.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

AK10843 ♥762 ♦104 ♠986

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 NT Double Redouble ?

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. East's redouble has relieved you of the obligation to bid and you should grasp the opportunity to stay out of partner's way. He may wish to rescue himself in clubs or hearts.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

AKJ864 ♥7 ♦J3 ♠AQ1075

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four clubs. The bidding might have proceeded more smoothly, had you originally opened with one club on this minimum holding, but, be that as it may, your values are too distributional to permit partner to try the shorter road to game.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

AKJ87432 ♥KJ1085 ♦4

Your partner opens with one no trump. What is your response?

A.—Six spades. There are many hands that do not lend themselves to a scientific approach. This is one of them. However, the odds in favor of a small slam are sufficiently good to make us willing to gamble it out, and a direct stab could easily serve to inhibit the best defense.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable and as South you hold:

AKQ93 ♥4 ♦J1093 ♠K86

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Double 4 ♠ 5 ♣

Pass Pass 5 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Six spades, not with an intention of fulfilling the contract, but merely to prevent the opposition from scoring a vulnerable slam which is highly probable, it, as seems likely, West has the ace of clubs. Your partner has little defense since he twice failed to double the opponents. His diamond holding and marked shortness in clubs indicates that your "save" will prove most economical.

Important trim for holiday parties: Your festive best dress!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Yule Rules For Guest Dress

As you open one invitation after party or buffet? Any party held another to a holiday party, feel between four and eight p.m. is free to fancy yourself Cinderella "dresser" and so are you, preparing for the ball — as long as this is the time to don that pretty as you don't depend on a fairy afternoon dress or dressmaker godmother to dress you in the suit. Your costume can be street proper taste. Let each invitation length or ballerina, but no longer, —and your own sharp instinct— If you have another, more formal tell you what to wear.

Are you asked to a holiday brunch or luncheon? For any occasion starting before four o'clock, wear a street-length dress or suit, and hat and gloves, of course. Early-day events usually suggest a tailored touch, but this is a special sparkling season, so gay accessory colors or a fancy chapeau are expected to brighten the scene.

About those gloves: Keep them on at all times out of doors, even for shaking hands with someone you meet on the street. Once indoors, remove them for shaking hands, eating, drinking and smoking. To keep them on is bad manners.

Your gentleman-escort will be correctly conservative in a dark blue or grey business suit with a white shirt, four-in-hand tie and black shoes. This is his best guest-dress for all informal daytime affairs... and for informal evenings, too.

Do you have a bid to an afternoon open-house, tea, cocktail double-duty jacketed cocktail suit is an ideal choice. A hat and gloves are still in order between four and eight... but this time the hat can be one of those merest, frothiest whippers.

You may choose the same afternoon garb for informal dinners, buffet suppers and evening open-houses, or you can select a short party dress, as long as it isn't low-cut or strapless. Daring dresses are just "too much" to be in tasteful accord with the relaxed intimacy of informal affairs. Now, because it is after six, you can doff your hat entirely —but keep those gloves!

Much knottier after-six problems crop up when the invitation specifies "black tie" or "white tie." They deserve another column all their own. In that column tomorrow, those gentleman-escorts won't get off quite so easily as they do here.

In memory of Francis D. Norton who passed away 8 years ago December 12th, 1952.
Gone but not forgotten. He was a good man, a good father, a good husband. His memory is as dear today as it was when he passed away. We often sit and think of him when we are all alone. For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.

In Memoriam

In memory of Francis D. Norton who passed away 8 years ago December 12th, 1952.

God took him home, it was his will. But in our hearts we love him still. His memory is as dear today as it was the day he passed away. We often sit and think of him when we are all alone. For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own. Sadly missed by WIFE, DAUGHTERS AND SON.

In loving memory of my dear wife Alice Lee Swartz, who died 6 years ago, December 12, 1954.

Life's road into the sunset. We all must some day tread. And though it brings us sorrow, When a loved one goes ahead, There is always comfort knowing, We all will meet some day. When all grief and pain are over, And the clouds have rolled away, Sadly missed by HUSBAND, DAUGHTER, SON & GRAND-CHILDREN.

Mistletoe Medicine

WOODBIDGE, Conn. (UPI)—Mistletoe, a modern Christmas symbol of togetherness, once was really useful—or so some folks thought.

The use of mistletoe as a Christmas decoration—and the custom of kissing beneath it—dates as far back as Greek civilization, reports Carroll Alton Means of Woodbridge, noted antiquarian and student of Christmas lore.

Means, a consultant to the Hallmark Cards historical collection, said that as late as 1720 Sir John Colbatch of England—carrying out the beliefs of the ancient druids—prepared a dissertation on mistletoe, recommending it as "a medicine very likely to subdue not only the epilepsy, but all other convulsive disorders."

Find Fossil Skull

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI)—Australian geologists have found the fossil skull of a 100,000,000 million year old fish-eating monster four hundred miles off Queensland coastline.

The skull, found at Yamboree Creek was of a thirty feet long reptile called pliosaurs.

GOP Hopes For 2-Party South Jolted In Election

Editors' Note—Are the Republicans building a two-party system in the traditionally Democratic south? Did the 1960 election maintain or reverse Southern political trends? These questions are discussed in the following interpretive article by Carl P. Leubsdorf, political writer in the New Orleans bureau of The Associated Press.

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—The Republican dream of building a two-party system in the South suffered a setback in the 1960 election, an Associated Press study of congressional returns showed Sunday.

The survey indicated that, although the solid South has become rather obsolete in national elections, it remains as strong as ever on the local level.

Despite the fact that Vice President Richard M. Nixon polled 47.7 per cent of the two-party vote in 11 Southern states, GOP congressional candidates attracted a 21.8 per cent. This marked a drop of nearly two per cent from 1956, the last comparable election.

The Republican party in the South ran almost 26 per cent behind Nixon in the election as a whole, it trailed only 7 per cent.

Furthermore, the Republicans ran three fewer congressional candidates than in 1956 and showed gains in only four states in the region. In only one, North Carolina, was the Republican gain considerable, while five of the seven states showing Republican decreases registered large drops.

Finally, the only Republicans elected in the South were the seven who have won in every election since 1954. In only two other districts, both in North Carolina, did Republican candidates come within 10,000 votes of their Democratic opponents. And one of these districts, the 9th, was closer in 1952 than in 1960.

The popular vote for Southern Republican candidates for the House showed a slight gain over 1956, from 1,673,706 to 1,745,937. But the Democratic vote, which had dropped nearly 500,000 from 1952 to 1956, rose by more than 800,000 to 6,272,620.

The only states showing GOP increases were Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina and Texas. In three of these states the GOP gain was 2 per cent or less. In North Carolina, the Republicans picked up .94 per cent to a respectable 39.5 per cent.

In the other seven states, the Republicans lost ground. Some of the drops were 6 per cent in Georgia, 6.4 per cent in Florida, 7.5 per cent in Virginia, 9.5 per cent in Tennessee and 12.7 per cent in Arkansas.

Among the reasons cited by political experts for the difficulty Republicans are encountering in the South are these:

1. Most Democratic congressmen are so well entrenched nothing short of death or reappointment can remove them. Presidential candidates change but congressmen seemingly last forever and incumbents are hard to beat.

2. Most Republican parties are "shadow" organizations. The real strength of national GOP candidates in the South stems from volunteer groups, many whose members simultaneously favor the reelection of Democratic congressmen.

3. Most Southern Democrats are conservative and segregationist, giving them a monopoly on political ideas in the region. Whereas there was once a feeling Southern Republicans would take a more liberal stance, partially to win the ever-increasing Negro vote, the opposite has come true.

If the 1960 election proved anything it was what political experts here have been saying for some time that a two-party system in the South—exclusive of presidential races—is extremely unlikely barring a tremendous political shakeup (remote) or a disappearance of the race problem (more remote).

Even a realignment of political parties would probably not change things much. The name might be different, but the South would still be solid.

Good Songs Helping Top Musical Shows

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite the fact that both "Tenderloin" and "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" received mixed notices, both musicals are doing excellent business, and the songs have much to do with the favorable word-of-mouth around town.

The original cast albums for both shows have been put on the market by Capitol Records, and a couple of playings of these platens should whet the appetite for visits to the attractions.

I am even more firmly convinced than when I expressed the thought in my review after the premiere of "Tenderloin" that the songs by Jerry Bock (music) and Sheldon Harnick (lyrics) are by far the best thing in this tale of old-time New York sin spots.

They have captured the proper turn-of-the-century feeling in most of their numbers, and "Artificial Flowers" is a classic simulation of the old tearjerker ballad of the '30's, "Little Old New York."

"The Picture of Happiness," "Dear Friend," "How the Money Changes Hands," "Good Clean Fun," "My Miss Mary," "My Gentle Young Johnny" and "Tommy, Tommy" are delightful.

I think the recording also will give you an agreeable surprise in the singing of the shows' star, Shakespearean Maurice Evans, who hasn't sung in almost 30 years.

As for "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," you know that this score has to have a good measure of quality stuff when you learn that Meredith Willson of "The Music Man" fame wrote the songs.

It isn't easy to fully appreciate a score in a one-time hearing in a theater performance, but after playing the album I still stand by my review appraisal that this new one falls somewhat short, especially melodically, of the score of "The Music Man."

At the same time, I have grown increasingly fond of the "Unsinkable" songs.

For example, I am now convinced that the opening number, "I Ain't Down Yet," is every bit as rousing a march type of song as the famous "76 Trombones" of "The Music Man." But it will never get the same amount of identification in the public mind because the words are strictly "story" and make no sense outside the show.

"Trombones" is just as definitely a part of the story of "The Music Man," but it can stand by itself lyrically and the very title is arresting. Matter of fact, "I Ain't Down Yet" as "I'm Going to Learn to Read and Write." The real title is a spoken line from the expository verse, while the latter phrase is a line from the melodious chorus.

This, of course, simply illustrates the unorthodox (more power to him!) manner in which Willson operates both with words and notes. The neat pattern, the routine word rhyming isn't for him unless he has need of it to make a special point. In the only two stage shows he has written, he has proved to be a blessing to the musical theater.

These recordings, as is the case with any original cast album, should make you more appreciative of the work of just about the most unsung contributors to shows—the arrangers and/or orchestrators. It is almost impossible to appreciate their work in "coloring" and blending the composer's music just by a theatrical performance.

Hurricane-Hit Edison Shrine Is Reopened

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—

The home and garden where inventor Thomas A. Edison perfected the electric light and spent more than 40 winters is back in business as a national shrine after spending three months and $10,000 cleaning up after Hurricane Donna.

Operated by the city of Fort Myers as a gift from Edison's widow to be maintained as a public showplace, the 13-acre estate with its home, laboratory and gardens is a major attraction for visitors.

Main objects of interest are the old brass-front Model T given to Edison by Henry Ford who had an adjoining winter home here; models of the first phonograph, telegraph key and others of the more than 1,000 inventions which Edison patented, and the laboratory where his tools and even his work notes are on display as he left them at his death in 1930.

The gardens are an equal treat for nature lovers, comprising a botanical wonderland of rare old tropical trees planted by Edison himself.

The home is about as Edison and Mrs. Edison left it — she deeded it to the city in the 1940s. New carpentering, papering and painting after the hurricane was carried out with care to avoid changes.

NEW YORK (UPI)—What does a nurse do when she's not at the patient's bedside.

And how much time does a nurse spend nursing the sick in a typical hospital?

The questions are answered in a survey report based on a round-the-clock nurse-watch in the 318-bed Overlook Hospital in Summit, N.J.

The report, published in Medical Tribune, a publication for doctors, shows that 28 per cent of the registered nurse's time is spent nursing.

Other finds:—A third of the total working hours is taken up with such institutional services as cleaning patient's rooms, making unoccupied beds, serving meals, sorting and stacking linen, doing clerical work.

—More time is spent in laundry service than in observing signs, symptoms and reactions of patients.

—Twelve per cent of the time is spent for personnel services, time for meals and other personal needs, including timekeeping, payment activities and on the job training of auxiliary personnel.

Between two and three per cent of the time is spent on security activities. That is taking steps to assure safety and protection of persons and property. For example, checking and recording narcotics and locking and unlocking medicine cabinets.

Three per cent of the time is taken up by waiting. For example, waiting to give or receive reports, waiting to receive supplies, and waiting for elevators.

The study was conducted by the College of Nursing of Rutgers University. Marguerite E. Kakosh, assistant professor of nursing, directed the survey.

All nursing service personnel on duty during the 24-hour watch on nurses recorded at five-minute intervals the activities performed during their eight-hour shifts.

The 220 participants included 114 professional nurses, 71 non-professional nursing personnel, 20 students of practical nursing, three volunteers and 12 non-nursing employees as floor clerks, secretaries and maids.

Each patient received an average of slightly more than 18 minutes of direct nursing care from the total professional nurse staff in an eight-hour period.

The patients received 11 minutes of additional service each from the licensed practical nurses, attendants and aides.

GOP Hopes For 2-Party South Jolted In Election

Editors' Note—Are the Republicans building a two-party system in the traditionally Democratic south? Did the 1960 election maintain or reverse Southern political trends? These questions are discussed in the following interpretive article by Carl P. Leubsdorf, political writer in the New Orleans bureau of The Associated Press.

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—The Republican dream of building a two-party system in the South suffered a setback in the 1960 election, an Associated Press study of congressional returns showed Sunday.

The survey indicated that, although the solid South has become rather obsolete in national elections, it remains as strong as ever on the local level.

Despite the fact that Vice President Richard M. Nixon polled 47.7 per cent of the two-party vote in 11 Southern states, GOP congressional candidates attracted a 21.8 per cent. This marked a drop of nearly two per cent from 1956, the last comparable election.

The Republican party in the South ran almost 26 per cent behind Nixon in the nation as a whole, it trailed only 7 per cent.

Furthermore, the Republicans ran three fewer congressional candidates than in 1956 and showed gains in only four states in the region. In only one, North Carolina, was the Republican gain considerable, while five of the seven states showing Republican decreases registered large drops.

Finally, the only Republicans elected in the South were the seven who have won in every election since 1954. In only two other districts, both in North Carolina, did Republican candidates come within 10,000 votes of their Democratic opponents. And one of these districts, the 9th, was closer in 1952 than in 1960.

The popular vote for Southern Republican candidates for the House showed a slight gain over 1956, from 1,673,706 to 1,745,937.

But the Democratic vote, which had dropped nearly 500,000 from 1952 to 1956, rose by more than 800,000 to 6,272,620.

The only states showing GOP increases were Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina and Texas. In three of these states the GOP gain was 2 per cent or less. In North Carolina, the Republicans picked up 9.4 per cent to a respectable 39.5 per cent.

In the other seven states, the Republicans lost ground. Some of the drops were 6 per cent in Georgia, 6.4 per cent in Florida, 7.5 per cent in Virginia, 9.5 per cent in Tennessee and 12.7 per cent in Arkansas.

Among the reasons cited by political experts for the difficulty Republicans are encountering in the South are these:

1. Most Democratic congressmen are so well entrenched nothing short of death or reapportionment can remove them. Presidential candidates change but congressmen seemingly last forever and incumbents are hard to beat.

2. Most Republican parties are "shadow" organizations. The real strength of national GOP candidate in the South stems from volunteer groups, many whose members simultaneously favor the reelection of Democratic congressmen.

3. Most Southern Democrats are conservative and segregationist, giving them a monopoly on political ideas in the region. Whereas there was once a feeling Southern Republicans would take a more liberal stance, partially to win the ever-increasing Negro vote, the opposite has come true.

If the 1960 election proved anything it was what political experts have been saying for some time that a two-party system in the South—exclusive of presidential races—is extremely unlikely barring a tremendous political shakeup (remote) or a disappearance of the race problem (more remote).

Even a realignment of political parties would probably not change things much. The name might be different, but the South would still be solid.

Good Songs Helping Top Musical Shows

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite the fact that both "Tenderloin" and "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" received mixed notices, both musicals are doing excellent business, and the songs have much to do with the favorable word-of-mouth around town.

The original cast albums for both shows have been put on the market by Capitol Records, and a couple of playings of these platitudes should whet the appetite for visits to the attractions.

I am even more firmly convinced than when I expressed the thought in my review after the premiere of "Tenderloin" that the songs by Jerry Bock (music) and Sheldon Harnick (lyrics) are by far the best thing in this tale of old-time New York sin spots.

They have captured the proper turn-of-the-century feeling in most of their numbers, and "Artificial Flowers" is a classic simulation of the old tearjerker ballad of the '90s, "Little Old New York." "The Picture of Happiness," "Dear Friend," "How the Money Changes Hands," "Good Clean Fun," "My Miss Mary," "My Gentle Young Johnny" and "Tommy, Tommy" are delightful.

I think the recording also will give you an agreeable surprise in the singing of the shows' star, Shakespearean Maurice Evans, who hasn't sung in almost 30 years.

As for "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," you know that this score has to have a good measure of quality stuff when you learn that Meredith Willson of "The Music Man" fame wrote the songs.

It isn't easy to fully appreciate a score in a one-time hearing in a theater performance, but after playing the album I still stand by my review appraisal that this new one falls somewhat short, especially melodically, of the score of "The Music Man." At the same time, I have grown increasingly fond of the "Unsinkable" songs.

For example, I am now convinced that the opening number, "I Ain't Down Yet," is every bit as rousing a march type of song as the famous "76 Trombones" of "The Music Man." But it will never get the same amount of identification in the public mind because the words are strictly "story" and make no sense outside the show.

"Trombones" is the story as definitely a part of "The Music Man," but it can stand by itself lyrically and the very title is arresting. Matter of fact, I'm always inclined to think of "I Ain't Down Yet" as "I'm Going to Learn to Read and Write." The real title is a spoken line from the expository verse, while the latter phrase is a line from the melodious chorus.

This, of course, simply illustrates the unorthodox (more power to him!) manner in which Willson operates both with words and notes. The neat pattern, the routine word rhyming isn't for him unless he has need of it to make a special point. In the only two stage shows he has written, he has proved to be a blessing to the musical theater.

These recordings, as is the case with any original cast album, should make you more appreciative of the work of just about the most unsung contributors to shows—the arrangers and/or orchestrators. It is almost impossible to appreciate their work in "coloring" and blending the composer's music just by a theatrical performance.

Hurricane-Hit Edison Shrine Is Reopened

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—The home and garden where inventor Thomas A. Edison perfected the electric light and spent more than 40 winters is back in business as a national shrine after spending three months and $100,000 cleaning up after Hurricane Donna.

Operated by the city of Fort Myers as a gift from Edison's widow to be maintained as a public showplace, the 13-acre estate with its home, laboratory and gardens is a major attraction for visitors.

Main objects of interest are the old brass-front Model T given to Edison by Henry Ford who had an adjoining winter home here; models of the first phonograph, telegraph key and others of the more than 1,000 inventions which Edison patented, and the laboratory where his tools and even his work notes are on display as he left them at his death in 1931.

The gardens are an equal treat for nature lovers, comprising a botanical wonderland of rare old tropical trees planted by Edison himself.

The home is about as Edison and Mrs. Edison left it — she deeded it to the city in the 1940s. New carpentering, papering and painting after the hurricane was carried out with care to avoid changes.

Area Blanketed By Heavy Snow

Traffic At Standstill In Tri-State

A heavy blanket of snow fell on the Tri-State area yesterday dumping an accumulation of nearly nine inches on Cumberland, and bringing highway traffic to a virtual standstill over most of Western Maryland and parts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Although there was little drifting reported with winds of around eight miles per hour during the day, State Roads Commission officials and State Police said driving was nearly impossible in Garrett and Allegany Counties without chains or snow treads.

Roads Blanketed

The heavy snow, which began about 6 o'clock yesterday morning and continued through nightfall, blocked most of the county roads in Western Maryland and brought out road crews in full force in an effort to keep state highways passable.

Temperatures ranged from 21 to 31 degrees in Allegany County, remaining steady at 21 degrees most of last evening. Robert R. Golden, weather observer at Constitution Park, said he measured 8.7 inches at 7 p.m., with the snow still pelted down heavily.

The accumulation of snow is the second largest amount recorded for Cumberland for the month of December in the past seven or eight years. Slightly over nine inches was registered in December 1957 and this was expected to be surpassed by morning.

33 Men Working

R. E. L. Putman, maintenance engineer for the SRC, said Garrett County crews were working all day to keep main highways open with 33 men and 19 pieces of equipment being used. The crews were plowing and cinderling and roads were open but extremely slippery and wet.

In Allegany County 46 men and 23 pieces of equipment worked on a 24-hour basis to keep main thoroughfares passable, but chains were recommended and motorists were cautioned to drive only in extreme emergency.

The storm, which appeared to be moving eastward from the west, pelted Garrett County with over seven inches of snow before slackening somewhat late in the evening. The mercury dipped to 18 degrees in the Oakland area and some winds were noted, although not much drifting was reported.

Highways, however, were covered and very dangerous, State Police reported.

10 Inches Reported

Nearly 10 inches of snow fell in nearby West Virginia, although some of the southern parts of the state in the higher mountain elevations, got rain during much of the day.

A drop in temperatures was expected overnight with some freezing on the highways noted. Highway conditions were considered hazardous, especially in mountain areas.

West Virginia State Road Commission officials said the heaviest accumulation was reported in Mineral County, where up to 10 inches was recorded by mid-afternoon yesterday.

State Police in Romney, Hampshire County, said over six inches of snow fell there and authorities were warning motorists not to travel unless necessary.

Hagerstown and Frederick reported over seven inches on the ground early in the evening with the snow still falling.

State Roads Commission had 40 men and 21 pieces of equipment working in Washington County, cinderling and plowing highways.

In Baltimore, where six to eight inches of snow was expected, a snow emergency plan went into effect during the afternoon. The snow fall caused the cancellation of today's racing at Pimlico race track.

While roads throughout Maryland were dangerous, no major accidents were reported.

Allegany County Schools To Be Closed Today

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster announced last night that public schools in Allegany County will be closed today because of yesterday's heavy snow storm.

Showing concern that highways will not be in shape for school buses with the storm continuing, Mr. Webster decided at 10:30 last night to close the schools today.

Parochial school officials said last night they will follow the dictate of the public schools and also will close down today.

However, officials in Garrett County and nearby Mineral County in West Virginia indicated their schools will remain open today despite the nearly 10 inches of snow blanketing the area. Frostburg State Teachers College also will be open.

Allegany Gets $98,263 From Md. Income Tax

Advance Payments Now Being Made

Allegany County is receiving $98,263 and Garrett County $10,776 from the advanced distribution now of state income tax revenues, according to State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

These two western-most counties of Maryland are eight in the state, which along with Baltimore City, have elected to participate in the advanced distribution, provided by Chapter 26 of the 1960 Laws of Maryland. The money comes from second and third quarter receipts from employer's withholding and estimated income tax installments.

Mr. Goldstein explained that previously the income tax revenues have not been distributed until after the income tax returns have been filed and has come at the close of the state's fiscal year.

Because of the financial need of Baltimore City, the comptroller's office and the solicitor's office of Baltimore City, at the request of Governor J. Millard Tawes, collaborated in drafting an amendment to the Maryland Income Tax Law which would permit the distribution of part of the subdivision's share of income tax receipts before the return actually had been filed and on a more current basis.

Baltimore City and the counties on a calendar year basis of accounting will get a "windfall" from the advanced distribution for the first time. This results from the timing as it comes during the same calendar year as the last full distribution made in June.

Getting the "windfall" besides Baltimore City are Garrett, Harford, Kent, Queen Anne's and Washington counties. Allegany, Calvert and Montgomery, which operate on a fiscal year basis, do not get a "windfall" from the advance distribution.

Other amounts beside Allegany and Garrett counties are as follows: Baltimore City, $2,188,523; Calvert County, $15,335; Harford County, $120,174; Kent County, $19,320; Montgomery County, $1,319,737; Queen Anne's County, $21,947; and Washington County, $127,461. The total is $3,921,536.

When the Board of County Commissioners here set the annual levy list on April 19, it was estimated that this county would get $205,000 from income taxes during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1961. On that basis, the county should expect $106,737 more next June.

Indiana Man Held In Death Of His Mother

Beating Occurred In Garrett County

John Sherlock, 38-year-old Angola, Ind. man, was being held in Fayette (Pa.) County jail on an open charge yesterday in the beating death of his mother, which apparently occurred in Garrett County.

Authorities said Mrs. Bridgett Sherlock, 58, died at Brownsville, Pa. General Hospital Friday night of a skull fracture and lacerations of the liver.

An autopsy revealed she was beaten to death. Dr. W. Ralston McGee, county coroner, said her injuries resulted from heavy blows inflicted by another person.

Multiple Bruises

Oliver Lehtinen chief county detective, said the woman had multiple body bruises and apparently was in a coma until she died.

District Attorney John Hoye of Fayette County said Sherlock was being held for authorities of Garrett County where he said the beating apparently occurred.

Yesterday Cpl. Robert Henline, of the Maryland State Police, State's Attorney Dwight Stover of Garrett County and Deputy Sheriff Wayne Wilt went to Uniontown to question the man and his children who were being held in detention quarters. Mr. Hoye added authorities would prefer formal charges.

Sherlock took his mother to the hospital Thursday. According to Detective Lehtinen, Sherlock taken his mother had taken an overdose of sleeping pills in a Garrett County motel.

Changes Story

Pennsylvania authorities Saturday night said the son at first stated he had fought with his mother in the motel in Garrett County on Thursday afternoon, then changed his story to say she suffered an epileptic fit, had taken some pills and later fell in a bathtub in a motel located on U.S. Route 40 in Garrett county.

The woman was admitted to the Pennsylvania hospital Thursday evening in a semi-conscious condition and suffering from internal injuries. She died late Friday night.

Mr. Hoye said Saturday that since the incident occurred in Maryland it is the responsibility of Maryland authorities to determine if foul play was involved.

Sherlock informed Pennsylvania authorities that he was enroute with his mother and two minor sons from Norfolk, Va., to Angola. He first advised police of the fighting with his mother, and then said she had been injured after becoming ill.

Sherlock said that after leaving the Garrett county motel his mother's condition worsened and he took her to the Brownsville hospital.

Later Sherlock and his two sons went to the home of Mrs. Virginia McMaster, of Brownsville, for food and lodging. When they failed to leave at Mrs. McMaster's request, Brownsville authorities were summoned and they were taken into custody.

Man, Woman Shot To Death In Paw Paw

Murder-Suicide Is Probed By W. Va. Police

A Paw Paw, W. Va., man and woman were found shot to death yesterday in his bungalow located on the outskirts of that Morgan County community and West Virginia authorities said they died as a result of a murder and suicide.

The two victims were identified as Kenneth Powers, who formerly lived in Magnolia, and Evelyn Fleckenstine, both of whom were reported in their mid 30s.

Police said they understood there had been a common law relationship between the two during the past eight or 10 years, and they apparently had gotten into a quarrel Saturday night.

Seated On Couch

The woman was found seated on a couch in the living room and was slumped over a nearby coffee table. She had been shot in the neck and shoulder, police said.

Powers was found lying on his back in another room and a 12-gauge pump action shotgun was found between his legs. He was shot in the head, the blast of the gun having blown the top of his head off.

Corporal Jess Higby of the Berkeley Springs detachment of the State Police said neighbors reported hearing a shot at the home about 10:30 p. m. Saturday.

They said they heard a woman scream and about 10 or 15 minutes later heard another shot. At the time the neighbors did not pay any more attention to the shots fired from the shotgun apparently owned by Powers.

Early yesterday afternoon the neighbors became curious and went to the dwelling. A brother of the dead man and a neighbor opened the door of the bungalow with a key the brother had.

Investigation Continues

After finding the two bodies, a Paw Paw physician was summoned as were the state police, sheriff and coroner who are continuing the investigation.

Corporal Higby said he arrived on the scene about 2 p. m. and all indications point to a murder-suicide.

Assisting Corporal Higby with the investigation are Sheriff William Clark and Dr. Samuel I. Nichols, coroner.

Powers was reported to have been working in the Winchester, Va. area, the sheriff said.

The bodies were taken to the Park Funeral Home in Paw Paw.

Area Blanketed By Heavy Snow

Traffic At Standstill In Tri-State

A heavy blanket of snow fell on the Tri-State area yesterday dumping an accumulation of nearly nine inches on Cumberland, and bringing highway traffic to a virtual standstill over most of Western Maryland and parts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Although there was little drifting reported with winds of around eight miles per hour during the day, State Roads Commission officials and State Police said driving was nearly impossible in Garrett and Allegany Counties without chains or snow treads.

Roads Blanketed

The heavy snow, which began about 6 o'clock yesterday morning and continued through nightfall, blocked most of the county roads in Western Maryland and brought out road crews in full force in an effort to keep state highways passable.

Temperatures ranged from 21 to 31 degrees in Allegany County, remaining steady at 21 degrees most of last evening. Robert R. Golden, weather observer at Constitution Park, said he measured 8.7 inches at 7 p.m., with the snow still pelted down heavily.

33 Men Working

R. E. L. Putnam, maintenance engineer for the SRC, said Garrett County crews were working all day to keep main highways open with 33 men and 19 pieces of equipment being used. The crews were plowing and cinderling and roads were open but extremely slippery and wet.

In Allegany County 46 men and 23 pieces of equipment worked on a 24-hour basis to keep main thoroughfares passable, but chains were recommended and motorists were cautioned to drive only in extreme emergency.

The storm, which appeared to be moving eastward from the west, pelted Garrett County with over seven inches of snow before slackening somewhat late in the evening. The mercury dipped to 18 degrees in the Oakland area and some winds were noted, although not much drifting was reported.

Highways, however, were covered and very dangerous, State Police reported.

10 Inches Reported

Nearly 10 inches of snow fell in nearby West Virginia, although some of the southern parts of the state in the higher mountain elevations, got rain during much of the day.

A drop in temperatures was expected overnight with some freezing on the highways noted. Highway conditions were considered hazardous, especially in mountain areas.

West Virginia State Road Commission officials said the heaviest accumulation was reported in Mineral County, where up to 10 inches was recorded by mid-afternoon yesterday.

State Police in Romney, Hampshire County, said over six inches of snow fell there and authorities were warning motorists not to travel unless necessary.

Hagerstown and Frederick reported over seven inches on the ground early in the evening with the snow still falling.

State Roads Commission had 40 men and 21 pieces of equipment working in Washington County, cinderling and plowing highways.

In Baltimore, where six to eight inches of snow was expected, a snow emergency plan went into effect during the afternoon. The snow fall caused the cancellation of today's racing at Pimlico race track.

While roads throughout Maryland were dangerous, no major accidents were reported.

Allegany County Schools To Be Closed Today

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster announced last night that public schools in Allegany County will be closed today because of yesterday's heavy snow storm.

Showing concern that highways will not be in shape for school buses with the storm continuing to pelt the area last night, Mr. Webster decided at 10:30 last night to close the schools today.

Parochial school officials said last night they will follow the dictate of the public schools and also will close down today.

However, officials in Garrett County and nearby Mineral County in West Virginia indicated their schools will remain open today despite the nearly 10 inches of snow blanketing the area. Frostburg State Teachers College also will be open.

Allegany Gets $98,263 From Md. Income Tax

The money comes from second and third quarter receipts from employer's withholding and estimated income tax installments.

When the Board of County Commissioners here set the annual levy list on April 19, it was estimated that this county would get $205,000 from income taxes during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1961. On that basis, the county should expect $106,737 more next June.

The woman was found seated on a couch in the living room and was slumped over a nearby coffee table. She had been shot in the neck and shoulder, police said.

Powers was found lying on his back in another room and a 12-gauge pump action shotgun was found between his legs. He was shot in the head, the blast of the gun having blown the top of his head off.

Corporal Jess Higby of the Berkeley Springs detachment of the State Police said neighbors reported hearing a shot at the home about 10:30 p.m. Saturday. They said they heard a woman scream and about 10 or 15 minutes later heard another shot. At the time the neighbors did not pay any more attention to the shots fired from the shotgun apparently owned by Powers.

Early yesterday afternoon the neighbors became curious and went to the dwelling. A brother of the dead man and a neighbor opened the door of the bungalow with a key the brother had.

Investigation Continues

After finding the two bodies, a Paw Paw physician was summoned as were the state police, sheriff and coroner who are continuing the investigation.

Corporal Higby said he arrived on the scene about 2 p.m. and all indications point to a murder-suicide.

Assisting Corporal Higby with the investigation are Sheriff William Clark and Dr. Samuel I. Nichols, coroner.

Powers was reported to have been working in the Winchester, Va. area, the sheriff said.

The bodies were taken to the Park Funeral Home in Paw Paw.
